WEDDING IS HALTED BY BANK LOOTER'S FATHER

Bank Clerk in Confession Says He Was in Turn Robbed by Faro Swindlers of $180,000.

George W. Coleman, the young Cambridge bank wrecker, will not be married, as he has proclaimed he would be, before his trial for looting the bank. His father, Walter G. Coleman, has forbidden the banns.

The father was seen this afternoon as he was entering the office of his son's counsel, Henry H. Winslow.

"When is your son George's marriage to take place?" Mr. Coleman was asked.

"There will be no marriage," replied the father. "I have forbidden it."

"But George is of age, isn't he, and may do as he pleases?"

"Yes, he is of age, but he is under obligations to me and he appreciates what I have done for him."

That apparently meant that George has been told that if he weds without his father's consent, the $50,000 bond upon which he was released from prison may be withdrawn.

COLEMAN'S STORY OF BANK LOOTING

Coleman has told the full story of how he spent about $180,000 of the immense sum taken from the bank.

Coleman implicates "Big Bill" Kelliher, declaring that Kelliher was the leading spirit in the gang that fleeced him; that Kelliher knew that he got the money "wrong;" that Kelliher sent him from New York "back to get more money," and that Kelliher gave him money with which to square up things before he went away and telegraphed him money to Kansas City.

The big loot practically all went to the faro swindlers of Boston, who took Coleman to New York. Between last May and the time Coleman found that his game was up he went to New York on an average of twice a week, making probably fifty trips in all.

At one time Coleman denounced Kelliher, he said, because everything was going out and nothing coming in. Kelliher simply said, "Go back and get more."

As Coleman Tells It.

This is Coleman's story as it was taken down from his lips by a stenographer in the presence of Henry M. Winslow, his attorney; Police Captain Patrick J. Hurley, Inspector Neilon and Wilson W. Lockhart.

"I used to publish some souvenir books and when I was in that business I met a young man named Frank Draper. He used to come down to the Traveler office. He worked for Ben Wells and myself. There is where I met him. Wells and I worked together. That was four or five years ago.

"I have not the exact date, but I think it was in 1906 that Draper introduced me to the faro proposition. I have no memorandum to prove the date. It was in the Spring of the year.

"It was along some time just before Governor Hughes was elected in New York that I began to go over to New York with Draper. I went over there three or four times. I gave up in these visits about $25,000, as nearly as I could place it, and it went into the faro bank. I was there all the time.

Introduced to Dealer.

"I don't remember what street the faro bank was on. It was up around in the fifties anyway. I was introduced to a man there named 'Charlie.' He was a dealer in the faro bank at that time. We didn't even stop at a hotel during those early

CASHIER IS THROTTLED BY BOLD ROBBERS

Former Councilman William H. Curley, Philip Hayes and Jacob Davis were held in $2,000 bonds by Judge Murray in the Boston Municipal Court to-day for a continued hearing on April 1 on charges of throttling Cashier Andrew Gardiakos at Grimes's restaurant, No. 13 Cornhill, early to-day and robbing him.

The robbery occurred early to-day. The three men, after getting the cashier's money, ran out of the restaurant, while half a dozen customers, amazed at the boldness of the holdup, sat rooted to their chairs. The robbers were later captured on Brattle street by Sergeant Ahearn and Patrolmen Haggerty and Barthel. The cashier identified them as the men who had robbed him.

The trio was locked up at the Court Square station, where they gave their names as William H. Curley, thirty-five, who claims to live at No. 151 Centre street, Roxbury; Philip Hayes, thirty, claiming residence at No. 54 Nashua street, and Jacob Davis, aged thirty, who says he lives at No. 43 Staniford street.

There were five or six customers seated at the counters in the restaurant when the three men entered the door together. Curley walked straight up to the desk and asked Gardiakos, who was standing near the cash register, to change a fifty cent piece for him.

In the meantime one of the three had sprung the latch on the door so that it could not be opened from the outside. Shortly after Gardiakos had placed the money in his pocket Joseph Berg, a Boston newspaper man, who lives at No. 28 Gale street, Malden, appeared at the door and tried to get in. When the door would not open he rattled the catch.

Gardiakos heard the noise and walked around from behind the counter to admit Berg. Hardly had he stepped into the centre of the store when he was seized from behind by one of the trio who pinned his arms to his side. Another grasped him by the throat and choked off his cries while the third rifled his pockets.

The cashier was struck a stinging blow in the face and kicked into a corner of the restaurant while the three holdup men sprung the latch on the door and fled up Brattle street in the direction of Scollay square.

Berg, who had witnessed the robbery, rushed up Cornhill and found Sergeant Ahearn and Patrolmen Haggerty and Barthel. He told the policemen what had happened and the quartet dashed around into Brattle street and pounced upon the three robbers. Before they had a chance to offer any resistance the trio were securely handcuffed and taken to the station house.

BACK BAY MAN IS A SUICIDE

Henry W. Patterson, manager of the Oak Grove Creamery, and living at No. 111 Mountfort street, Back Bay, committed suicide by shooting early to-day in a lodging house at No. 42 Hancock street, across the street from the State House.

On a table near the body was this note:

"Dear Wife Good-bye. Sorry I had to do this. There was no other way. Harry."

What the trouble was which drove Mr. Patterson to self-destruction was not known.

Patterson shot himself through the head and died instantly.

The man had been in the house two days. The chambermaid found the body. Patterson had removed his coat, wrapped himself in the bedclothes, covering his face with a sheet, and then placed the revolver close to his head and fired. The sheet was burned by the powder.

Mrs. Patterson, who was notified as soon as the identity of the man was suspected from papers in his pockets, hurried to the lodging house. She identified the body as that of her husband. She said that he had been in ill health and that, outside of that, she knew no reason for his committing suicide.

Patterson is said to have prospered in business. He was well dressed.

He had made careful preparations for death. When the chambermaid entered the room on the second floor she saw what she supposed was a long roll of bed clothing on the floor beside the bed. Attempting to lift it, she was surprised at its weight. She unrolled it enough to catch a glimpse of the dead man's head. The maid ran screaming to the landlady. Dr. H. B. Andrews saw that the man was past relief. He notified the police. Special Officer Dudley, from the Joy street station, found, it is said, that Patterson had left two notes, one to his wife, and a second [illegible].

Since coming to the room revealed a quantity of white powder on the floor which was thought to be poison. Patterson did not have to resort to this, however, as the first shot he fired at his head through the bed-clothing was sufficient.

JUST ANOTHER BLOW AT CANNON METHODS

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Representative Sherley of Kentucy introduced in the House to-day a proposed amendment to the rules creating a rule calendar. It is proposed that in the case of resolutions referred to the Committee on Rules, if not reported to the House within one week, it shall be in order to inform the clerk of the House that a motion will be made to discharge the Committee on Rules from further consideration of the resolution, thus bringing the matter before the House. The rule calendar is only to be called on the second Thursday in each month. The resolution was referred to the Committee on Rules.

R. R. MACHINISTS TAKE STRIKE VOTE

CHICAGO, March 26.—Ten thousand members of the International Machinists' Union employed by railroads South from Chicago to the Gulf and West to the Coast, began taking a strike vote to-day. It is expected that the vote will be completed by April 1. The strike move followed the failure of the machinists' representatives and railroad officials to agree on a wage increase demanded by the men.

EX-BRIDGE TENDER FIGHTS FOR HIS JOB

Charles J. Stowell, a former assistant city bridge tender, appeared before Judge Sheldon in the Supreme Court to-day and got a writ of mandamus ordering Superintendent of Streets Emerson to show cause next Friday why Stowell should not be reinstated. Stowell received notice on December 5, 1908 that on December 10 he would be suspended indefinitely. He appeared before Emerson with counsel on that day and asked for a hearing, demanding the reasons for his dismissal. Emerson, it is alleged refused to give him a hearing.

FIVE INJURED AS ENGINE BLOWS UP

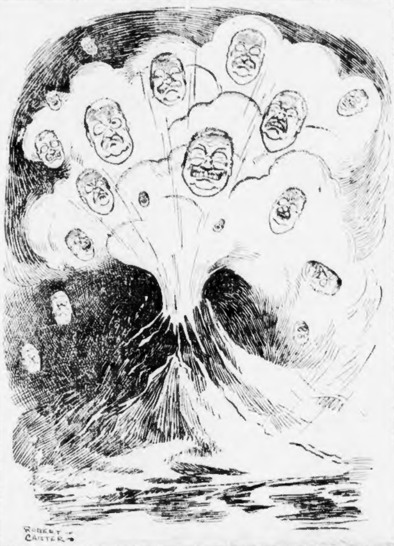

KINGWOOD, W. Va., March 26.—Five persons were injured, two perhaps fatally, at Newburg, this county, when a Baltimore & Ohio locomotive ran wild down a half-mile grade, side-swiped two other engines and then exploded, making scrap iron out of the two other engines while fragments of the runaway itself were scattered over the town. A man standing half a mile away was one of the more seriously hurt. The bell of the exploding engine was thrown 700 yards and crashed through the residence of E. C. Ellis, where an upper room was partly wrecked. The whistle was thrown nearly a mile.

DO THIS BEFORE BREAKFAST

Better get your BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN before breakfast to-morrow. If you don't you are liable to be disappointed.

Among other things which are creating a large demand for to-morrow's SUNDAY AMERICAN will be the appearance of Mutt and Jeff in color in the comic section.

Eruption as Seen From White House

COOL EASTER, WITH SHOWER IN EVENING

Get ready for a cooler Easter, with evening showers.

The hot wave which blew over Boston from the West, blew out over night and left to-day an average of ten degrees cooler. This falling temperature is expected to continue to-morrow, though not enough to make the air very chilly. The local forecast is:

"For Sunday, increasing cloudiness, showers Sunday night, cooler."

At 11 a. m. to-day Boston was comfortable at 48 degrees. This was ten degrees lower than the same time yesterday.

HUDDELL AGENT OF BUILDING TRADES

Arthur M. Huddell was re-elected business agent of the Building Trades Section of the Central Labor Union after one of the longest meetings on record. Other officers elected are: President, George G. Barry; vice president, Charles Murray; secretary, Albert E. Pike; assistant secretary, J. C. MacDonald; treasurer, M. J. Young; financial secretary, M. T. Joyce; sergeant-at-arms, Thomas Fields. The section sent a letter to the national secretary asking that the charters of the plumbers, lathers and plasterers' unions of this city be revoked unless they affiliate with the Building Trades Section.

SLASHES GIRL'S FACE IN A JEALOUS FURY

NEW HAVEN, Ct., March 26.—Maddened by jealousy, James Luddington slashed the face of his sweetheart, Olive Barker, eleven times. He met the girl on the street, accused her of waiting for another man and then whipped out the knife. Harry Parker overpowered Luddington after a hard fight. It is feared Miss Barker's beauty is marred for life. "No one else will love her now," said Luddington in his cell.

COURTMARTIAL FOR TWO NAVY OFFICERS

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The Navy Department has ordered a court-martial to try Commander Frank K. Hill and Lieutenant Paul E. Dampman of the United States gunboat Marietta on charges that they have not taken proper care of the vessel. The court will sit at the Portsmouth Navy Yard April 12. Rear Admiral Winslow is designated as president of the court.

SIX ARE REPORTED INJURED ON B. & O.

CUMBERLAND, Md., March 26.—Six persons are reported injured, several of them fatally, as the result of a head-on collision on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad near here to-day. One of the engines exploded.

DIAMOND MAN IS CAUGHT ON THEFT CHARGE

Arthur E. Grover was arrested at the Crawford House to-day on the complaint of Sol Kanter, jeweler, who charges that Grover stole $1,640 worth of diamonds he had borrowed to show to a supposed customer.

Grover is thirty-four years old and lives at No. 19 Dix street, Dorchester. Up to January 7 he had an office in the Jewelers' building, No. 377 Washington street, where Kanter is located. Kanter says that on January 7, Grover came to him and said:

"A woman in my office wishes to buy a diamond. Let me take some to show her."

Kanter told the police that he gave Grover five uncut stones and one set stone, and that Grover merely locked his own office and left the building. The police have been looking since for Grover. To-day Inspectors Wolff and Laughlin got him. He is formally charged with the larceny of the stones.

SEEK TO FIX BLAME FOR CHICAGO FIRE

CHICAGO, March 26.—The search in the ruins of the Fish Furniture Company for more victims of yesterday's $150,000 fire was resumed to-day, and at the same time the combined investigation by the fire, police and building departments and coroner's office to fix the blame for the loss of at least twelve lives, became more searching. Fire Chief Horan says that last August one of his captains reported that the six-story Fish structure should be equipped with a stairway fire escape in front. Leo Stroeckel, twenty-one years old, whose attempt to fill an electric spark cigar lighter from a five gallon can of benzine caused the fire, was held on the charge of manslaughter.

TAKES POISON WITH OFFICIALS AT SIDE

DETROIT, March 26.—Standing in the presence of United States secret service officers, Frank Mitts, a prominent citizen of Port Huron, committed suicide by taking a dose of cyanide of potassium after confessing that he was a counterfeiter of Canadian and American half-dollars. The officers found a counterfeiting outfit in his basement.

FINDS SISTER AFTER TEN YEARS' SEARCH

After a search for ten years, Edward Moran of Hough's Neck, Quincy, has located his sister, Elizabeth, in Berlin, N. H. Moran's parents died fifteen years ago and the six children were scattered. Three girls were placed in a home for girls and when they were sixteen were adopted by families. Moran was taken care of by an uncle. All trace was lost of Elizabeth. Recently Moran learned that his sister was married and living in Berlin. She had been placed with a family in Gardner, Me., and when eighteen years old, married Joseph B. Bogle, an employe of a paper mill.

TOURISTS IN PERIL OF LAVA

CATANIA, Sicily, March 26.—Thirty American tourists narrowly escaped death to-day in the fiery stream of lava that is pouring from Mount Etna. The tourists had gone toward the danger zone in autos, only to be stopped by the police. The party, however, while the authorities were occupied in keeping the panic-stricken peasants in order, and warning back other crowds of tourists, evaded the police and slipped through the lines. They advanced almost to the edge of the lava stream.

Lava Races Down Slope.

As they stood below a little declivity watching the spectacle, the lava spurted forward, hissing and steaming, and shot down the slopes at whose foot the Americans were standing.

Women shrieking, turned and fled before the wave which rolled forward with the speed of a breaker on a level beach. Several of the party stumbled and were dragged forward bodily by their men companions. For a tense minute the party maintained the mad race with the deadly, molten stream, and then a hillock offered them refuge. As they reached the top of

BALLINGER IS NOT FORCED TO GO ON STAND

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 26.—Secretary Ballinger will not be called before the Ballinger-Pinchot joint investigating committee until Attorney Vertrees is ready to have him testify. This was in effect the decision which Chairman Nelson announced when the committee met to-day and denied the request of Attorney Brandeis, representing L. R. Glavis, to have Mr. Ballinger summoned and appear at once. The committee reached this decision unanimously in executive session.

Mr. Brandeis entered a vigorous protest against the decision, declaring that the issue now is one of veracity on the part of Secretary Ballinger and intimated that more time would give the latter an opportunity to "frame up" testimony to correspond with that given by witnesses who had already testified.

John H. Steele, counsel for the Guggenheim syndicate, and one of the representatives of the Morgan-Guggenheim interests in Alaska, who testified several weeks ago before the Senate Committee on Territories that the Guggenheims had an option on the Cunningham claims, was called.

JURY NOW OUT IN KRITCHMAN CASE

NEW HAVEN, Ct., March 26.—Judge Williams of the Superior Court charged the jurors in the Kritchman murder case to-day and they retired. The judge summed up the charges against Sophie Kritchman and Joe Mitchell, tried together on the charge of shooting and cutting the throat of Bronislaw Kulvinskas of Naugatuck last September. The men were both admirers of Miss Kritchman, who is a pretty Lithuanian girl. Miss Kritchman claims that Mitchell shot him. Mitchell's defence has been an alibi. He put forward thirty-four witnesses who testified that he was not near the spot of the murder the day it occurred.

CANNON LOOKS FOR JUNE ADJOURNMENT

WASHINGTON, March 26.—It is believed by some Congressmen that Congress will be ready to adjourn within the next ten weeks but a look at the House calendar and a review of committee work makes it clear that this is improbable if the President insists on carrying out his legislative program. Speaker Cannon said to-day that he did not look for adjournment much before June 15.

$25 FINE THE COST OF RUNNING AWAY

A chase down Roxbury street, Roxbury, from the court house, down Shawmut avenue and finally into a haw-mow in a Shawmut avenue stable, resulted in a fine of $25 to-day for Walter Lawler, twenty-one years old, of Dudley street. Lawler led three bare-headed policemen in the chase. The fine was imposed for running away from a probation officer. Lawler paid.

WOMAN SUES POLICEMAN.

Katherine F. Silver of No. 321 Ocean avenue, Revere, to-day filed suit against John J. Shanahan, a policeman, asking that she be awarded $10,000 damages for his failure to keep his alleged promise to marry her.

DIES HANGING TO LIVE WIRE

LOWELL, March 26.—For thirty seconds to-day, John Dowd, employed by the city of Lowell in the moth exterminating war, hung to a "live wire" in mid-air with both hands. Through his body passed 2,200 volts of electricity. Dowd then dropped to the ground dead—electrocuted—with his hands burned to the bone by the "live wire." He is unmarried and lived on Pollard street.

Dowd, who was known as one of the daring climbers of the department, went up a tree at Lakeview avenue and Aiken street. His hand accidentally struck a live wire. Instinctively he put out his other hand. Then the current of electricity jerked his inert body away from the tree and he hung in mid-air for thirty seconds.

SALEM MAYOR IS STILL FREE

SALEM, March 26.—Although all Salem expected to-day to see Mayor Howard, surrendered to the State by his bondsman, Daniel F. Haggerty, nothing was done in the matter. Haggerty signed a bond of $800 for the Mayor's release when the latter was arrested on the charge of criminal libel preferred by the editor of the Salem News.

Haggerty said to-day that a political faction in the town is trying to down the Mayor and is using every influence to persuade him to refuse to be Howard's bondsman longer. He says that while he would never surrender the Mayor, nevertheless, he has become weary of being the storm centre of a political fight and has asked the Mayor to obtain other bondsmen. Mayor Howard says there are fifteen men in Salem ready to go his bonds, if he should need them.

TARIFF PEACE WITH CANADA

WASHINGTON, March 26.—There is to be no tariff war with Canada. An agreement has been reached. The following statement was given out by Secretary of State Knox to-day:

"The negotiations between the President and the Canadian representatives, which were begun at Albany some days ago, were resumed at Washington to-day and were concluded. They have taken a form which gives assurances that a friendly understanding will be arrived at immediately. It is expected that an announcement will be made simultaneously at Washington and at Ottawa on Wednesday the 30th instant."

The Canadian representatives were in conference at the White House exactly one hour.

FEAR KIDNAP PLOT TO FREE LYNN SUSPECT

LYNN, March 26.—Chief of Police Burckes to-day received a letter from his son, Inspector Stacey Burckes, from Bucharest, Roumania, stating that he had made complete arrangements for taking Vahan Nalbandian to this country to face the charge of murdering Minas K. Momjian last July and locking his body in a trunk.

The latter stated that the American min- that efforts would be made by friends of the prisoner to kidnap him while en route. Inspector Burckes said that the American minister, Carter, had advised sailing with the prisoner from Varna, Bulgaria, for Liverpool, and that this advice would be followed. This trip takes three weeks. Teh letter stated that the American minister had made all arrangements for extraditing the prisoner. A cable has been since received saying that the inspector and his prisoner have started for home.

SHIP MUTINY STOPS TESTS

NORFOLK, Va., March 26.—The investigation into the mutiny among the men of the scout cruiser Salem, which the sailors have dubbed "the hell ship of the navy," has halted the government's plans for extensive wireless experiments. The Salem and her sister ship, the Birmingham, are under orders to proceed to South America to work in co-operation with the shore wireless station at Brant Rock, Mass. It was declared to-day that the investigation might indefinitely delay the cruise.

Rear Admiral Dillingham to-day continued the inquiry into the situation in which Commander George R. Evans of the Salem is accused of being a martinet.

At the same time, strenuous efforts are being made to find the men of the crew who painted on the side of the ship at night, signs such as "Evans' mad house," and "Evans, the slave driver."

MINERS DISCUSS STRIKE SITUATION

CINCINNATI, O., March 26.—When the delegates of the United Mine Workers of America gathered to-day for the convention called by President Lewis as a result of the deadlock with the operators on wage demands, they were confronted by three questions: Whether there should be a strike of 400,000 men voted in the coal mines of Pennsylvania, Indiana, Ohio and ultimately Illinois; whether a strike of 60,000 Ohio miners only should be called, or whether there should be no strike.

GIRL'S FORTUNE TO DEFEND HER MOTHER

WATSEKA, Ill., March 26.—Detectives employed and paid by Goldie Sayler to-day began a mysterious hunt for an important witness in the trial of the girl's mother, Mrs. Lucy Sayler, Dr. W. R. Miller and John C. Gronden, charged with conspiracy in the death of J. Byron Sayler, Goldie Sayler's father. The girl is nineteen years this month and received $5,000 from her father's estate. TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS
Up to Midnight. London Time

"Enchantress's" Trial Now Open to Women.

VENICE—The judge presiding over the trial of the Countess Tarnowska, "the enchantress," to-day gave way to suffragette tactics and rescinded his order barring women from the court room. Since the order was issued his life has been made unbearable by a concerted campaign by women of all classes who wish to attend the hearings. They will be admitted when the case is resumed on Tuesday provided each is heavily veiled. The principal witness at the trial of the Countess, who, jointly, with her maid, Elsie Perrier, Dr. Naumoff and the lawyer, Prilukoff, is on trial for the murder of Count Kamarovski, was Paolo Borghini, the warder of the woman's prison of Guidecca, where the Countess is incarcerated. Borghini swore that the Countess offered him $6,000 to procure her escape. He also testified that the Countess had attempted to bribe the guards of her Vienna prison. The Countess denied vehemently both statements.

Lowell Describes Martians.

LONDON—The interest taken here in Percival Lowell's theories about the planet Mars is indicated by the fact that on the arrival of the Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm at Plymouth, reporters met the Flagstaff astronomer with eager questions about the Martians and their world, as he interprets it. Professor Lowell gave no interview in the ordinary sense of the word, but of the Martians he had this to say. "They are not human beings. They are intelligent organisms, but not in the least like men."

Czar's Heir Runaway.

ST. PETERSBURG—The Czarevitch, a bright, sturdy boy not quite six years old, ran away from home last Tuesday. The small heir to the throne of all the Russias was lured by the sea. He had determined to become a sailor. After several hours of frightful suspense, the soldiers who had been dispatched to scour the country brought back the Czarevitch, accompanied by a lady who had met the child walking along a road two or three miles from the palace.

Judge Parker in Russia.

BERLIN—Judge Alton B. Parker left to-night for St. Petersburg. He expects to go thence, via the Crimea, to Constantinople, and then by way of Smyrna to Greece, returning home direct from the Mediterranean. Regarding the Massachusetts election he said: "It is only the beginning. The chances of the Democrats never looked rosier."

Monkey with Typhoid.

PARIS—Professor Metchnikoff, the famous head of the Pasteur Institute here, announced to the Academy of Medicine that he had inoculated a chimpanzee with typhoid fever. This is the first time typhoid has been transmitted to an animal. Metchnikoff's success is regarded as the most important step yet taken toward preventing the disease in humans, just as vaccination prevents true smallpox.

Airship Passenger Line.

MUNICH—Airships carrying passengers will fly between this city and Oberammergau from May 15 to October 1 next. The largest type of the Parseval airship will sail on the aerial line. Passengers embarking here can witness the Passion Play and return to Munich for $137 for the round trip. The total distance is 120 miles.

Chilean Rifles to Ecuador.

BUENOS AYRES—A well founded report reached here that the Chilean Government has shipped 15,000 Mauser rifles from Santiago, Chile, to Ecuador, under convoy by a Chilean war vessel. The situation on the west coast of South America is regarded as disquieting.

Ancient Cemetery Found.

PARIS—A cemetery from two to three thousand years old has been found at Pogny, near Reims. The tombs contain a quantity of beautiful vases, bracelets and necklaces and some decorated jewels.

COLEMAN CONFESSES STORY OF BANK LOOT, ACCUSING KELIHER

visits. We simply went down in the day-time and came back at night. We left Boston on the 1 o'clock train in the afternoon.

"After that Draper introduced me to a fellow named 'Jack.' That was two or three years later. Draper told me that he could not continue playing the game in New York, because Hughes had put the lid down. That was the reason there was a period of two or three years during which the faro game was not pursued.

"I was introduced to this man "Jack" on the Boston Common—no, it was not the Boston Common—that was another one. I think Jack introduced himself to me, or maybe it was Draper who introduced him after all.

"This man 'Jack' was always in New York. But he would come back and tell me that they were closed up, and that when they were opened up again in New York it would be all right if I wanted to get in again. Neither he nor I played the game in person at the bank. I only went into a faro bank once, I think, and that was with 'Jack.' I didn't play the money then, but 'Jack' did. We played $3,000 or $4,000 at that time. I met 'Jack' in New York by appointment.

Meets Keliher on Common.

"I never met anybody in New York who knew 'Jack' and me personally besides Draper, 'Charlie' and 'Bill' Keliher.

"I first met 'Big Bill' Keliher last May. I was introduced to him in Boston Common by this man 'Jack.' I went there by appointment to meet 'Jack.' They told me that they simply wanted a fellow with some money to go over to New York.

"They told me that the money was to be used to play faro. There was no understanding between us about it. When I was introduced to Keliher by 'Jack,' 'Jack' simply said to Keliher, 'Somebody with some money.'

"These men, in talking to me about playing the faro game in New York, declared that they were in league with the dealer. There were no rehearsals. If we had had a rehearsal perhaps we would have made good.

"That was the only time that 'Jack' met me with Keliher. Following that time Keliher and I went to New York together. None of them at that time, so far as I knew, was aware where I was getting the money which I furnished, but as a matter of fact I imagine they suspected it all the time, but they never said anything about it.

"When I talked with Draper he said not to touch any of the bank's money, and if I did he would have nothing to do with me. I did not touch any of the bank's money during Draper's time. The money that I spent with Draper was my own.

"I haven't seen 'Charlie' since that time. 'Charlie' was stout and appeared to be a very pleasant fellow. I understand he is a motorman in Chicago now. Since last May, Keliher and 'Jack' and I have been doing business alone.

"'Jack' was the dealer every time we went to a gambling house in New York since Keliher started in. During those trips we made to New York, so far as I know, I did not see or meet any reputable Cambridge man on the train. I knew some of the trainmen quite well. I presume that I went over to New York with Keliher from Boston to play faro about twenty-five or thirty times. We usually went over a couple of days each week since long about last May. We would average probably two days a week. I can't fix the number of times any more positively.

Loot Went Into Faro.

"All the money I spent, practically, was spent in the faro game. I could not spend it for anything else. I should say that it was about $180,000. It was not $250,000. There wasn't $250,000 there.

"Several time when I was in New York I came back after money. I probably came half a dozen times. I was not going to raise money down there. When I came back for money I never got less than a couple of thousand. I never saw Keliher have a dollar that he was going to gamble with that I know to be his own money.

"I think Keliher had a pretty good idea that I was getting the money out of the bank. I told him that I was getting it wrong. I don't remember that I said exactly that I was getting it out of the bank.

"I remember once that I suspected something and I asked 'Bill' where all the money went to. I said, 'Damn it Bill, what's the matter with that damn bank down there? Do you think I am going to get all the money there is in the country and go broke and get myself in wrong and go to the chair? Why don't you wake up and get some money? I can't stand this forever?'

"'Bill' said nothing except 'go back and get it.' There was something said about my position in the bank. 'Bill' did not come out to the bank that I remember, but he may have. I did not introduce him to people at the bank. I do not recall when Keliher first knew that the bank might discover the loss. I said to him several times that I was getting in wrong.

"I told Keliher before I went away that I was liable to get into trouble and was going to make a smooch. I meant by that to take a little vacation. That was three or four days before I went away. 'Bill' knew three or four days before I went that I was going to skip.

"I stopped at the Lenox a number of nights before I went away. I did this because I could not sleep nights, and I was going around a good deal and couldn't get home.

"Four days before I left, which was on February 18, Keliher knew that there was no doubt about the discovery of the discrepancy in the bank. He didn't do anything. Well, yes, he did give me some money. He gave me $150 with which to pay my board bill. Then when I got away he telegraphed me $250. He sent me that money either to get home on or to go away further. But I didn't get the $250 because I went under another name and I couldn't identify myself. Before I left Boston I told 'Big Bill' that I was going to Kansas City.

Keliher Engages Lawyer.

"When I got out there I went under the name of G. M. MacTaggart. I didn't stop at any hotel. I think I did register at a little hotel out of the way. I got one telegram while I was out there. I said something to 'Bill' Keliher before I went away about hiring a lawyer for me. I told him I would like to have a lawyer. I told him to have one meet me at the train when I came back.

"A lawyer met me there, but it wasn't the one I expected. I expected to see Mr. Coakley. Wilson Lockhart introduced me to Cronin. I think I was introduced at the Oxford. Neither I nor any of my family hired Cronin to defend me, and I do not consider him my lawyer now. I did consider him my attorney at one time.

"While I was in jail a statement was brought to me to sign. It purported to be an explanation of how I lost the money. The statement was to show that of the $140,000 taken from the bank, $90,000 had been lost in the stock market, $30,000 in election bets, $10,000 in riotous loving and $10,000 in betting and other ways.

"As an inducement for me to sign this statement I was told that my term of imprisonment in the Federal prison at Atlanta, Georgia, would be shortened. I was told that powerful influence would be enlisted in my behalf and probably my sentence would not exceed five years. I refused to sign the statement.

"The people who presented the statement for me to sign did not know at that time that the amount taken from the bank amounted to more than $140,000."

U. S. PROSECUTOR DEPLORES ACCOUNT OF CONFESSION

U. S. District Attorney French gave out the following statement to-day relative to the Coleman case:

"My attention has been called to an article which appeared in some of the morning papers purporting to be a statement of George W. Coleman, made yesterday in the presence of his counsel, a member of the Cambridge police force and a newspaper reporter. Such a publication at this stage of the proceedings in the United States courts is likely to have an unfortunate effect upon the administration of justice.

"It would obviously be highly improper for me to make any further comments upon it and I have declined to do so.

JORDAN PLEA POSTPONED

The hearing on bills of exception in the case of Chester S. Jordan, wife slayer, planned for to-day, was postponed by Judges Stevens and Bell, owing to the inability of the District Attorney to be present. Mr. Higgins is preparing the Keliher case for trial and did not wish to interrupt his work. The hearing on the Jordan exceptions was postponed indefinitely.

CHAMBER URGES A BETTER TUNNEL DEAL

Directors of the Chamber of Commerce to-day gave out a statement recommending to the members that they work in favor of a tunnel to connect the North and South Terminal stations. They recommend that the city assume no obligation unless it is given a chance to build a desirable teaming thoroughfare in connection with the tunnel upon more favorable terms than proposed by the directors of the New Haven railroad. The directors recommend that the railroad build the tunnel and own it, to pay a franchise tax to the city and the city to have the right to purchase the tunnel. It believes the city or State shall have the right to regulate the route, capacity, method of construction and charges. The report will be taken up at a special meeting of the Chamber Wednesday afternoon.

"YELLOW PUP" FUND REACHES $500,000

NEW YORK, March 26.—The Hotchkiss investigation into the lobbying method of fire insurance interests will show that the "yellow pup" fund was fully $500,000, according to statements made to-day by persons connected with the investigation. From 1901 to 1906 the insurance companies, it is charged, spent $100,000 annually in "thanks offerings" and other contributions to legislators. The investigation so far has exposed $200,000 "yellow pup" expenditures. The hearings will be resumed Monday and it is believed that developments even more startling will follow quickly.

POSSES HUNT BAND OF HORSE THIEVES

HIAWATHA, Kas., March 26.—Fifty men armed with shotguns and rifles are searching the country fifteen miles northeast of here in automobiles to-day in an effort to rout a band of horse thieves that is reported to have barricaded themselves in the rough lands. Other posses have left Atchison, Falls City and Troy bent on the same mission. The citizens were led to take this action because of the theft of two horses from the barn of H. C. Thomas, the county assessor.

PRIEST LOSES LIFE GIVING LAST RITES

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 26.—The death of Rev. Father John H. Boersig, pastor of St. Mary's Church at Madison, followed blood poisoned contracted from a dying parishioner, to whom he had administered the last sacrament. The priest touched the dying suppliant's lips with his fingers, which were slightly lacerated, and was infected.

BOSTON LOOT IS RECOVERED IN NEW YORK

Three men suspected of having robbed the Samuel E. Ullian jewelry store at No. 1113 Washington street of $18,000 worth of diamond stick pins, rings and watches on February 28, were arrested early to-day in New York at Goerck and Delancy streets by Detectives Duggan and Kinsler, after a rough-and-tumble fight.

The men are Jacob Goldberg of No. 38 Goerck street, Harris Rothstein of No. 111 Goerck street; James Goldberg, Jacob's brother, of No. 38 Goerck street, New York. The detectives assert that the first two men are on record in connection with other burglaries.

The detectives received information, the source of which they declined to give out, that the three men were in the neighborhood of Goerck street, and that they were suspected of the robbery. The men made a hard fight against arrest, but were finally locked up at police headquarters.

Directly after the robbery of the jewelry store Superintendent William H. Pierce of the Boston police sent out broadcast over the country printed information about the stolen articles, and also a description of the men. A negro porter who happened to be near the jewelry store told the Boston police that he saw three men at the store on the night of the burglary, and that one of them was tall and heavy, one short and stout and the third tall and slender. The three men arrested are of this description.

When the men were taken into custody to-day five watches and many pieces of jewelry were found in their possession. From Jacob Goldberg was taken a watch, the number of which corresponds to one of the numbers given in the printed list sent out by the Boston police. Other watches were found for which there was no description from Boston. This leads the police to think that the men have been committing other burglaries.

Mr. Ullian and a member of Chief Watts's staff left Boston at noon for New York to identify the property taken from the men.

FIRES SWEEP THREE STATES

OIL CITY, Pa., March 26.—Forest fires in several sections of Venango, Forest, Warren and Clarion Counties have destroyed much valuable timber, oil well rigs and tanks. Hundreds of men are now fighting the flames, which are being fanned by a high wind.

BELLEFONT, Pa., March 26.—A forest fire in "The Barrens," near the State college, has been swept by high winds over miles of territory, destroying thousands of dollars worth of young timber. The fire is threatening homes and farm buildings.

PARKSBURG, W. Va., March 26.—Three miles below this city a forest fire is raging and is advancing in this direction. Farmers are working frantically to save their homes and barns by plowing around them. Acres of timber and miles of fences have been destroyed.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 26.—The fire department and farmers saved the mansion of the late Governor David Tod. A grass fire swept the farms of John and James Davis and communicated to the Tod estate.

CARRY ILLINOIS "DRY" WAR TO LEGISLATURE

CHICAGO, March 26.—The eliminating of the "Wet" and "Dry" question from the ballots in the election April 5th, through the action of the election commissioners in nullifying the 74,000-name petitions, instead of deterring the Prohibitionists precipitated a State-wide campaign to-day. Having failed to bring the question to an issue in Chicago this Spring, the Illinois Prohibition executive committee circulated a petition to bring the question before the Legislature next Fall.

PHILIPPINE UNREST WORRIES OFFICIALS

WASHINGTON, March 26.—An ill-concealed feeling of displeasure is evident at the War Department at the cumulative evidence of unrest in the Philippines. Following the recent reports of prospective trouble in Mindanao as a result of the policy of leniency inaugurated by General Pershing, the mails bring word that the Progressists party, now in control of a radical element, is demanding of Congress a statement as to the future intentions of the government.

L. & N. ROAD HAS GIGANTIC INCREASE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 26.—The Louisville & Nashville railroad's statement shows that since July its increase in earnings over the same period last year has been $4,177,949.

ALL STOMACH MISERY IS ENDED BY TAKING A LITTLE DIAPEPSIN

If you had some Diapepsin handy and would take a little now your stomach distress or Indigestion would vanish in five minutes and you would feel fine.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, out-of-order stomach before you realize it.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you, or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of Indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a little just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no undigested food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it prevents fermentation and takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is at any drug store waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to thoroughly cure almost any case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion or any other stomach disturbance.

SEYMOUR GLOVER'S STORY AIDS POLICE IN CLEARING UP MYSTERY

Snapshot of Seymour S. Glover, brother Clarence F. Glover, and his daughter on the way to court. Glover's story of how evidence was found and disposed of in the Glow undry astonishes those watching the celebrated trial.

The most important fact having bearing upon the murder of Clarence F. Glover being developed before Judge McIntire, in the will contest, is that the only material corroborative evidence connecting Hattie Le Blanc with the crime was secured, not by the police, but by Seymour Glover, one of the beneficiaries of his will.

This evidence was the finding of Hattie Le Blanc's handkerchief, comb and pin in the laundry where the shooting took place. Seymour Glover says that he found them there after the police had made a search of the premises.

According to his sworn testimony he then handed them to Attorney Samuel D. Elmore, counsel for Mrs. Lillian M. Glover, the widow of the murdered man, who has accused Hattie Le Blanc of the killing and who has been accused of it by Hattie Le Blanc.

This narrows down the case against Hattie Le Blanc, as carefully considered to-day, to the statement made by the dying man, delirious from pain, that it was the little French housemaid who fired the fatal bullet.

Elmore Figures Large.

Thus it appears that most of the police case against the girl has come from one man, Attorney Elmore, who has figured large in the case from the start. It was he who handed to the police the articles which Seymour Glover says he found in the laundry. It was he who was permitted by the police to be present when Hattie Le Blanc was questioned after she was dragged from under a bed in the

Two Vital Things Required in Treating Skin Diseases.

In treating and curing Eczema and other well defined skin diseases, two vital things must be done. One is to exclude dust, germs and air from the diseased parts, and the other is to set up the healing process at the same time. The new medical preparation called Cadum accomplishes both these results so effectively that the itching is stopped as soon as it is applied, and the sore parts heal up in a wonderfully short time. Any one with skin trouble can test Cadum by getting a 10-cent box at any drug store, and thus personally realize the power of this new compound, which is just as effective in the cure of pimples, blotches, blackheads, eruptions, acne, herpes, scaly skin, rash, sores, chafings, etc.

MATTRESS AND SLEEPER UPSET 5TH AVE. '400'

NEW YORK, March 26.—A man about fifty years old came plodding along Fifty-seventh street, near Fifth avenue, to-day with a mattress and a pillow on his shoulders. In a few minutes he had upset aristocratic feelings. In one of his hands he had two bottles of milk tied with a string.

Servants in the Vanderbilt and Payne Whitney families saw the man and expressed pity for him. Their feelings of sympathy did not last long. When the plodder with the mattress reached Fifth avenue he dropped his burden to the sidewalk and kicked it up near the railing of the Vanderbilt home. Then he threw the pillow on the mattress, placed the milk and a loaf of bread on the sidewalk and lay down.

Shocking to Servants.

The Vanderbilt servants were shocked, horrified, overcome with mortification and frightened, all in one. The butler rushed out into Fifth avenue bareheaded and with a wave of his hand exclaimed:

"Hi, say, me man. You can't stay there, to know. Bless me soul, 'ti seems he's that man Kelly everybody around town are looking for."

A loud snore was all that greeted the butler. The Vanderbilt major domo then signalled to three other servants, who quietly awakened the sleeper and told him very forcibly that he would have to leave. He then proceeded to "Move up one."

Picking up his mattress and his pillow and his milk and bread, he ambled across the street, swinging the mattress in front of him as a sort of bumper for motor cars that threatened to run over him.

The servants in the Harry Payne Whitney mansion were all watching him. They thought it a big joke on the Vanderbilt servants. A crowd which quickly gathered thought it was a joke on Fifth avenue in general.

Moves, but Not Far.

Straight across the street the mattress-bearer went. When he got to the sidewalk of the Whitney mansion he again dropped the mattress, lay down on it and promptly fell asleep. Then it was up to the Whitney servants to move. They did so. The butler shouted at the somnolent one, another servant kicked him. All he did was to murmur something in a strange language. One of the servants called up the police and a patrol wagon came over from the East Fifty-first street station. Policeman James McKee awakened the man and told him he was under arrest.

He submitted quietly, put the mattress into the bottom of the wagon, threw the pillow on it, seized his milk and bread and then threw himself on the mattress and again fell asleep.

He was sent to Bellevue Hospital, where he was allowed to sleep for ten days if he so desired.

MAJOR TAGGART IS AGAIN ACCUSED

OSWEGO, N. Y., March 26.—Major E. F. Taggart, now several years ago sued for divorce and was accused in counter charges, resulting in a sensational trial, is again accused. Captain R. H. Peck of the Twenty-fourth Infantry, under arrest at Taggart's orders, charged with insubordination, is involved in charges against Taggart. Peck names a negress. The Twenty-fourth is a colored regiment. An investigation is being made by Colonel Pickering.

ONLY ONE WAY TO SHAKE IT OFF

Backache Will Get Worse and Worse Until the Kidneys Are Cured

Unhappy is the man or woman with a bad back! No rest, no sleep, no peace at all. begins in the morning, when you get up from bed so lame, sore and stiff that it is hard to bend over to put your shoes on.

All day there is a heavy, dull, throbbing pain in the small of the back, just over the kidneys. It hurts to bend over, to lift anything or even to get up from a chair. Any sudden, awkward movement sends a sharp, darting twinge through the sore spot.

When night comes the sufferer retires to fitful sleep, can't lie comfortably in any one position, or turn over without a painful effort.

Don't look at backache as merely a muscular pain, that will pass away with rest. There is a deeper trouble. Nine times out of ten it is the kidneys that throb and ache, and there can be no relief until the kidneys are given help.

The kidneys have a big work to do. All the blood in the body is coursing through the kidney filters constantly, to be freed of uric poisons. It is a heavy enough task when the kidneys are well, but a cold, chill, fever, or some thoughtless exposure, or overindulgence in liquor, tea, beer or coffee, is likely at any time to irritate, inflame and congest the kidneys, and interrupt the purifying work.

Then the aching begins, and is usually accompanied with some irregularity of the urine—too frequent passages, sediment in the urine, scanty, painful passages, or blood in the urine.

Thousands testify to the wonderful merit of Doan's Kidney Pills, a remedy for the kidneys only, that acts quickly, cures the kidneys, regulates the urine, and drives backache out for good.

James Conner, 196 Broadway, Boston, Mass., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are worthy of the highest recommendation I can give them. About ten years ago I suffered with pain in my right side which gradually extended into my back and left kidney. I was also bothered by a frequent desire to pass the kidney secretions, and any slight jar caused sharp twinges to shoot through my back. Soon after beginning to use Doan's Kidney Pills I felt better, and before long my suffering was entirely relieved. Since then I have given this remedy a further trial and it has never failed to bring the same prompt and satisfactory results. Whenever I have been asked about Doan's Kidney Pills it has been my pleasure to speak highly of them and advise their use."

CHELSEA 'WET' FIGHT FORCES OFFICIAL OUT

Abbott Lawrence, chairman of the Chelsea License Board, to-day presented his resignation to the Board of Control. He says he is disgusted with the license situation. The board took no action, postponing the consideration until Monday morning, when it meets again.

It is understood that at that time the members will take up the question of removing the entire licensing board. William Burns and Herbert A. Norton, the other two members of the License Board, were in conference with the Board of Control to-day, and at the close of the conference announced their determination to defy the board. "I have not resigned, and I shall not resign," said Norton. Burns echoed his sentiments.

Immediately after the conference the Board of Control met with Samuel H. Robie, Daniel J. McGivern and Alexander Leslie, and these men are believed to be slated for the places on the License Board.

The trouble between the boards has been growing for a week. The granting of licenses after two dry years has aroused considerable dissension, and the boards have been at loggerheads as to whom to grant the favors.

The final fight, it is understood, came over the Licensing Board's refusal to grant a license to a man in Postoffice Square. He had taken a lease and fitted up a place, but the commissioners refused to grant a license because of the number of women who pass the place. The Board of Control ordered a license and Lawrence's resignation followed.

Lava Sweeps on Villages.

The fiery river from Mount Etna continues its downward course. The eruption is frightful. Villages are engulfed. Thousands are in peril. Many have died. The people are panic-stricken.

Magnificent vineyards and gardens are disappearing under the incandescent river, which has burned up pictures of the Holy Virgin and the saints placed in the fields for their protection by the peasants.

Besides the main flow of the molten mass now 1,500 feet wide, there are minor branches, which have been deflected by the formation of the land, pouring a devastating mass over fertile plantations and in rich valleys while the main body tumbles down the steep slopes of the mountain.

The valley of Rimazzi is almost entirely buried by one of these branches, and another was lapping the outskirts of Nicolosi when the last inhabitant fled from the village.

Shortly after midnight the severity and frequency of the earthquakes increased, and the last vestige of control was shaken out of the frightened masses of peasants. Occasionally in the continued rumble of the volcano come sharp explosions that are audible for miles. About 4 a. m. a marked diminution in the lava flow was noticed, but it increased again.

Like Smoking Glacier.

Towns at first thought safe have been evacuated, as the lava stream creeps on steadily. To-day it lay like a smoking glacier down the side of the mountain, seven miles and a half of country that a few days ago was gorgeous with verdure.

The situation to-day appeared at one time to be materially improved, only to grow worse again.

Professor Ricco, the head of the observatory on Mount Etna which was wiped out in the first stages of the eruption, continued his investigations at the risk of his life. He declared to-day that the lava stream was advancing at the rate of two feet a minute. In every town in the afflicted district religious services are continued constantly. The placing of pictures of the Madonna and saints and other religious pictures in the way of the lava is the most distinctive feature of the religious side of the situation.

A new crater opened in the night, increasing the speed of the advancing lava.

Create New Terrors.

Reports received from the vicinity of Nicolosi this morning stated that there was no chance of the towns escaping destruction, and Borelli was to-day also reported in the same plight.

Frank A. Perret, the Brooklyn, N. Y., volcanologist, attached to the Vesuvius observatory, who rushed here on receipt of the first news of the eruption, was in Nicolosi to-day watching the effect of the lava flow on its edge. He retreated before the onrush slowly, noting every phenomen and detail of the action of the smoking river.

Although the crater at San Girolamo was to-day the most active, that of Tasca Albanelli created more terror to-day because of the unusual loudness of its detonations. Tasca Arena, another of the principal craters, continued its activity unabated. A heavy snow mingled with the ashes to-day.

WARSHIPS READY TO GO TO CATANIA; KING CARRIES AID

ROME, March 26.—Two warships were ordered in readiness to-day for departure to Catania. The order was taken to mean that King Victor Emmanuel would start for the scene of the Sicilian disaster at once. It was reported that Queen Helena had insisted upon accompanying him, but that the King had objected because she is now in poor health.

Army tents and supplies will also be carried on the warships. Premier Sonnino made arrangements for thorough relief to-day if necessary appropriation will be made.

TAFT GREETS SHACKLETON

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 26.—Sir Ernest Shackleton, the British South Pole explorer, who with Lady Shackleton arrived here last night and is a guest at the British embassy, to-day received a delegation of officials of the National Geographic Society at the embassy. The call lasted more than an hour.

The explorer is to be received at the White House this afternoon by President Taft. In Convention Hall to-night, where he will lecture to more than 5,000 persons, under the auspices of the National Geographic Society, President Taft is to present him with a medal from the society in the presence of the most distinguished scientist and government officials in Washington.

BRIGAND SLAYER OF 37 PERSONS CAUGHT

ODESSA, March 26.—The notorious brigand Lorkipanidse, accused of having murdered thirty-seven persons in 1907-08 was captured to-day after a hot fight in the Ktais district. He is accused of having tortured his victims to compel them to disclose the hiding places of their valuables.

HEADACHE? BACKACHE?

For the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and derangements, giving rise to frequent headache, backache, dragging down pains or distress and kindred symptoms of weakness, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a most efficient remedy. It is equally effective in giving strength to nursing mothers and in preparing the system of the expectant mother for baby's coming, thus rendering childbirth safe and comparatively painless. The "Favorite Prescription" is a most potent strengthening tonic to the general system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

TARIFF FIGHT IS OUTLINED

WASHINGTON, March 26.—A demand for the formation of a permanent tariff board and a hard fight for the reopening of the entire tariff situation are the main features on the program of the Democrats and Insurgents in the House.

It was learned to-day that within a short time a general attack on the tariff and its supporters, including possibly, President Taft, will be begun, and an effort will be made to pass some of the bills now before the ways and means committee putting articles now heavily taxed on the free list.

The organization of a genuine tariff board, say these men, is possible by employing the funds of the sundry civil appropriation. The outcome of this may be a campaign for an entirely new tariff bill. If a bill on the subject now in committee is brought before the House without action by the committee it can be enlarged and amended until it will have the force of a new tariff.

SPLENDID NEW FASHIONS, both American and European, told of in the SUNDAY AMERICAN by Lady Duff Gordon.

WILL CALL MILITIA IN PAPER STRIKE

LIVERMORE FALLS, Me., March 26.—Sheriff Hastings to-day announced that he had decided to call upon the Governor for a heavy force of State troops, to guard the mill of the International Paper Company, whose employes are on strike, unless the rioting ceases. At Franklin, N. H., last night, a watchman in one of the company buildings was struck on the head by a block of wood which was thrown through a skylight. The plant was in full operation to-day, with the exception of one small pulp mill. Guards protect the employes.

GIRL ACCIDENTALLY SHOT, MAY NOT LIVE

WOBURN, March 26.—While cleaning a 22-calibre Winchester rifle to-day, Jane McKay, twenty years old, a domestic in the City farm, was shot through the left breast. The rifle was owned by Superintendent Thomas Begley. The girl was cleaning his office. She is in a precarious condition at the Charles Choate Memorial Hospital.

TWO DEAD, FOUR HURT.

BERLIN, March 26.—Two trainmen were killed and four hurt to-day in a freight train collision at the Wustermterk station.

THOUSANDS IN REALTY DEALS CLOSED TODAY

Another large volume of real estate sales was reported to-day, including the property at No. 282 Hanover street, comprising a four and one-half-story brick building and 1,663 square feet of land, all taxed for $23,000, which has been purchased by Harris Poorvu from Anna C. Ellis. The land is rated for $20,000. The location is near Parmenter street, North End.

In the South End the estate at No. 237 West Newton street, near St. Botolph street, has been purchased by Charles H. Battles from Alfred H. Sawyer et al., trustees, the title passing through Frederick P. Cabot. There is a three-story, octagon-front, brick house and 2,433 square feet of land, all assessed for $12,000, of which $4,900 is on the land.

Rosie Segal has sold to Pellegrino Muollo the three and one-half-story brick building and 850 square feet of land at Nos. 11-13 Endicott street, near Salem street, North End. This property is assessed on a total valuation of $8,100, of which $6,000 is on the land.

Morris Gross has purchased from Louis Cohen the estate at No. 9 Laconia street, extending through to Perry street, near Harrison avenue, South End, which comprises a two and one-half-story and basement brick house and 1,316 square feet of land, all taxed for $4,700, of which $2,300 is on the land.

Henry D. Bennett has sold to George L. Roberts the new and attractive house at No. 225 Buckminster road, Brookline, together with about 9,000 square feet of land, at a price considerably in excess of the assessed valuation, which is $16,800, of which $4,800 is on the land. The purchaser is Lawrence F. Percival, who buys for occupancy and was represented in the transaction by B. C. Tower. This is one of the most attractive places in this desirable section of the town.

In Roxbury the frame dwelling house and 3,753 square feet of land, all assessed for $6,500, at No. 38 Edgewood street, near Southwood street, have been sold by Isaac A. Simon to Jacob L. Goldsmith. The land is taxed for $1,500.

Kate S. Gallagher has sold to Anna L. Danielson the three-story frame house and 1,888 square feet of land at Nos. 1-3 Galena street, near Kingsbury street, Roxbury. It is all taxed for $4,800, of which $800 is on the land.

Another Roxbury parcel sold is that at No. 4 Thornton place, near Thornton street, comprising two frame houses and 2,610 square feet of land, which has been sold by James Sutherland to Margaret F. Sullivan. It is all taxed for $3800, of which $800 is on the land.

In Dorchester the large frame house and 4371 square feet of land at No. 164 Magnolia street, corner of Bird street, have been sold by Nicholas W. Thornton to Robert A. Newcombe. It is all assessed for $5200, of which amount $1700 is on the land.

Another Dorchester estate sold is that at Nos. 74-75 Norfolk street, corner of Chipman street, comprising a frame house and 3562 square feet of land, which has been purchased by Thomas J. McGivern from Frank C. Hyde. It is all assessed for $4000, of which $1200 is on the land.

The corner property at Nos. 173-175 Havre street, corner of Porter street, East Boston, comprising a frame dwelling and 1045 square feet of land, all taxed for $7200, has been sold by Thomas W. O'Brien et al to Bella Katz. The land is assessed for $400.

Warren F. Freeman of the Kimball Building reports passing of final papers and recording of deeds in the sale to John A. Havey of thirty-four building lots on Eton and Vista streets and Augustus and Metropolitan avenues, Roslindale, for Frederick and Charles H. Johnson, as trustees. Mr. Havey has already resold three of the lots to purchasers who will build for occupancy at once.

Unusual Items in Day's News

Rat Catcher Avoids Jury.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Charles M. Frey, a rat catcher, wrote to Mayor Gaynor, asking that he be exempted from jury duty. The Mayor replied: "Sooner than have the city overrun with rats and everything eaten up by them, I would prefer to have you relieved from jury duty. Do you not think we had better have a bill introduced in the Legislature to exempt rat catchers from jury service?"

Pastor Too Bald to Preach.

JERSEY CITY, March 26.—The Rev. R. A. Hafer, pastor of St. Trinitatis's Lutheran Church of Jersey City for thirty years, has resigned and will preach his farewell sermon to-morrow. Hafer says: "The principal reason for my resignation is growing baldness, which gives me colds. My cranium is shining like a full moon."

U. S. Asylum for Baby Seals.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The government may start an orphan asylum for the bringing up of baby seals. The Department of Commerce and Labor has gone so far with the idea that it has asked the Treasury Department to lend it a professor of sealology.

$10,000 Worth of Opium in Sewer.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 26.—Part of $10,000 worth of confiscated opium was poured into San Francisco Bay to-day. This opium was in 449 tins and had been seized on various Oriental steamers in the last three months.

Taxicab Tips $110 a Week.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Mrs. Mary F. Scully, wife of William H. Scully, a taxicab chauffeur, who is suing for separation, declared in court that her husband has an income of about $110 a week in tips and salary.

Spring! Hen Kills Garter Snake.

BLOOMFIELD, N. J., March 26.—Yes, Spring's here. Fact is, that same old hen killed that same old garter snake right here in Bloomfield. The duel took place on the bank of the Second River. Lansang Bonnell saw the combat. Nobody will impeach Bonnell's testimony when it is pointed out that he is an insurance agent.

Blown from Auto; Unhurt.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Frederick Berg, chauffeur for Arthur D. Brandeis, of No. 14 West Fifty-fourth street, is trying to figure out just how his automobile gasoline tank exploded and why it was that he was unhurt when he was blown out of the car and three feet away from it.

OREGON MAN FINDS LOST EGYPTIAN ART

PORTLAND, Ore., March 26.—The lost Egyptian art of preserving vegetable and animal matter indefinitely has been rediscovered, according to W. H. Swett.

He says he has been experimenting for fifteen years and happened on the ancient secret by accident.

KAISER'S SON BRINGS PERSONAL MESSAGE TO FORMER PRESIDENT

CAIRO, March 26.—Theodore Roosevelt to-day received a personal message from Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany, through Prince Eitel Frederick, the Kaiser's son, whose visit here at the same time as the Roosevelts has aroused much comment. It was understood that the Prince carried an invitation from the Kaiser to the former President to be a guest at the royal palace while in Berlin. Colonel Roosevelt persisted in his desire to be treatd only as an American citizen.

Colonel Roosevelt enjoyed a day of comparative rest. In spite of a sight-seeing trip in the city two receptions and a luncheon at which he was the guest of the Khedive, the former President's itinerary was uneventful when set beside the strenuous programs of the last few days.

Greets American Tourists.

In the morning at Shepherd's Hotel, where the Roosevelt party occupies the royal suite, Mr. Roosevelt received the 300 American tourists who yesterday sent him a petition asking the opportunity to shake his hand. It was a reminiscence of the White House days. Mr. Roosevelt passed from group to group shaking hands, talking, making comments on the country and asking questions as he used to in Washington, and the 300 guests left wholly satisfied.

Then came the luncheon given by the Khedive, one of the guests being Oscar Straus, the American Ambassador to Constantinople. Others invited were Wu Ting Fang, recently Chinese Minister to Washington, and Prince Eitel.

The next step was a visit to the Azhar University and the Alkaza mosque and a game of golf with General Sir John Maxwell, commander of the British forces in Egypt. The reception in honor of the former President given by Consul-General Iddings marked the close of the day following a dinner given by the consul. The fashionable world of Cairo and many of the most prominent officials of the government met Mr. Roosevelt at the reception.

Attend Church To-morrow.

To-morrow the Roosevelts will attend the Easter services at the American Church. Between times in his busy round of sight-seeing and receptions Mr. Roosevelt has found opportunity to edit the speech he is to deliver Monday before the University of Egypt and to alter to a slight extent his criticism of the Nationalists. The papers of that party continue to attack him virulently.

ROOSEVELT VISITS TOMBS OF SACRED BULLS IN DESERT

By A. J. LAMBERT.

Special Correspondent of the Boston American.

Special Cable to Boston American.

CAIRO, March 26.—The Tombs of the Bulls, located in the desolate Sahara desert, occupied Colonel Roosevelt's attention though they are not of the Wall Street variety.

The ancient Egyptians considered them sacred, kept them on the fat of the land and buried them with god-like honors, in the huge and wonderful sarcophagi, which is not exactly what Roosevelt would do with the Wall Street breed. To-day again furnished a picture which the East alone is able to supply.

The party left Mena house early in the day and found Watson Pasha in brilliant uniform with a message from the Khedive asking the party to accept the escort of a squadron of the Royal Camel Corps. The huge beasts, the finest obtainable were each surmounted with a smart soldier in sand colored uniform, with sword and carbines slung gracefully. Incidentally there were cartridges for the carbines.

Kermit also rode a camel, Miss Ethel mounted a low decked donkey, while Mrs. Roosevelt chose a comfortable sand cart.

Eight miles across the desert, with the heat tempered by a cool breeze, brought the expedition to the Tombs of the Bulls.

Armed with candle dips, the expedition descended the steep and difficult path into the bowels of the earth and traversed the long arched tunnels, off which the huge cavernous spaces are filled with enormous monolithic sacophagi, arousing the wonder of the party as to how the huge blocks of granite were ever transported and placed in position.

I Drank Heavily

Averaged 1 Quart Whisky Daily

I started young, with beer & ale; "graduated" to hard liquors. Was proud of ability to drink so much; at earlier age could stand it pretty well. As time passed, I became often unable to work properly. Was often very drunk, very rarely sober.

GUARANTEED 3 DAYS' CURE

I could not keep in steady employment, lost fine chances of marrying, injured health, lost true friends; was "down and out." I became a human derelict & like thousands of others, might have died in insane asylum, poor-house or as a tramp. But rare good fortune befell me; after 16 years as a drunkard, I was suddenly changed from an inebriated, sick, castoff wretch to a sober, serious, ambitious man in 3 days. That was years ago. I would to-day no sooner swallow beer, ale, whisky or other alcoholic drink than I would take carbolic acid. My cure was marvelous & lasting! Since proving the wonderful discovery in myself, my Treatment has cured & is curing legions of others, men & women.

$10,000 REWARD

My method is guaranteed and is supplied under my $10,000 REWARD offer. You can cure drunkards with their knowledge or secretly. My home treatment cures the disease of alcoholism in 72 hours; local guarantee. All craving is lost; never comes again. Health, strength, brain power rapidly regained. Ailments (usually due to alcohol) such as rheumatism, back-ache, heart-palpitation, dyspepsia, failing eyesight, over-fatness; stomach, kidney, liver & urinary troubles, constipation, nervous debility, skin disorders, general weakness, melancholy—usually disappear when the craving for alcohol goes.

Women Cure Drinkers

WIVES, MOTHERS, sisters, friends, can cure men with or without their knowledge, bring great joy & peace of mind. The rescued drinker will be enthusiastic in praise; he will enjoy life as he never could do while drinking. Will power restored.

BOOK FREE Let me send my new, very interesting book, "Confessions of an Alcohol Slave." It describes all, gives valuable advice to drinkers (male or female), or friends. Sent in plain wrapper, free, postpaid. Write for it to-day, mention whether you desire to cure yourself or another & give a few particulars. I Cured My Rupture

I Will Show You How to Cure Yours

FREE!

I was practically helpless and bed-ridden for many years from a double rupture. I wore innumerable different kinds of trusses and appliances. Some of them were tortures, some positively dangerous, and none would hold the rupture in its proper place. The doctors told me I could not expect to have it entirely healed unless I would consent to a surgical operation. I fooled them all, however, and cured myself completely and permanently by a simple method which I discovered. Anyone can use it, and I will gladly send the cure free by mail to anyone who writes for it. Fill out the coupon below and mail it to me to-day. I will send the cure by return mail postpaid.

LIVING COST PROBERS LEARN HOUSE KEEPING OUTFITS ARE CHEAPER

With the breezes of sentimental Springtime blowing around the State House corridors, the commission appointed by Governor Draper to inquire into the cause of the increased cost of living is confronted with the harrowing question: Will the increased cost of living result in cutting off the June crop of brides and blushing bridegrooms.

The commissioners have known for some time that it was costing them more to be able to look the butcher and the baker squarely in the eye every Sunday morning, but the burning question now is, what are the hotel keepers out Niagara Falls way, the pastors in Nashua, N. H., going to do this year if the young men can't raise the nerve to try and support two people instead of one?

For a moment during the hearing the situation took on a serious aspect. Then Elwyn G. Preston, treasurer of the R. H. White Company, came to the rescue.

He had been summoned to tell about the increased prices and their causes in his business.

He began by saying that if Elsie and George want to get married they need have no worries, for it would cost them about $26 less, were they to invest $500 in furnishings, than it did ten years ago this June. If they went out with $474 with which to build the nest they would get a similar outfit to that which cost $500 in 1900. Which means that the increase in prices of articles needed about the fireside have decreased on an average of 5 per cent. in ten years. Mr. Preston added that they would probably get better goods for their money than in 1900.

Decrease in House Furnishings.

The table shows how things stand:

Cost of Outfit $500.

"Cold Storage a Boon."

President Charles H. Utley of the Quincy Market Cold Storage, who requested an investigation of the cold storage question, said: "The principle of cold storage is exactly the same as the instinct that causes the squirrel in the Fall to lay away a supply for the Winter. Cold storage is a boon to the public."

To Commissioner Bemis's query if he knew of any instance where the cold storage has been used to put up prices, Mr. Utley said: "I frankly admit that every one uses the cold storage with the expectation that by holding his goods he will be able to secure a better price than he would by selling them upon receipt, a business principle which really distinguishes between business success and failure."

Richard J. Hartman testified that in spite of the high prices flour is really the cheapest and most valuable of food products. "No trust or combination," he said, "controls the production, because such a combination is impossible in view of there being upwards of 25,000 flour mills in the country. Speculation ought to be regulated, while taking the entire crop of wheat sold over and over in Chicago is detrimental to the consumer and necessarily increases the price."

"The removal of the tariff," he said, "would not only regulate speculation on flour, but on every other food product."

Why Beef Is High.

Louis B. Noyes of the T. B. Wheeler and the Hyde-Wheeler companies, stated that his concern are consignors of the Armour company of Chicago. He said the commission merchants receive forty cents for each hundred pounds of beef sold, and, considering the present price of beef, he did not think the gross percentage very heavy. He said that the supply and demand determine the market price of the product.

Louis B. Norris, a commission merchant, was asked by Chairman Luce to explain the tremendous increases in the price of beef during the last few years, and replied that supply and demand was one of the principal factors.

Other factors, he said, were increased population as well as the decreased population of the farmers in the country. These two factors, together with the decreased supply of farm labor and increased wages with shorter hours demanded by the farm laborer, plays its part in the present high price of beef.

Mr. Norris denied the figures mentioned in Secretary Wilson's report that the difference between the wholesale and retail price of beef is 36 per cent. The farmer of to-day, he said, is growing potatoes instead of raising sheep and are riding in their own automobiles as a result of the high cost of mutton.

FIREMEN JOIN LABOR UNION

Boston's fire fighters are rallying round the trade union standard, especially the engineers and their assistants, following a decision by Fire Commissioner Parker that the men were not prohibited from joining a trade union if the labor organizations did not attempt to change the rules of the department. Stationary Engineers' Union 16, to-day, has 102 applications for membership pending, all from these men.

Forty-two new members were added to the Stationary Engineers' roll call at its meeting last night, the greater number of whom were members of the fire department, following the official ruling of Commissioner Parker. By unanimous vote of the Engineers' Union it was decided that its members would not attempt to change any rule of the department.

DEDHAM MAN 57, IS FATHER OF 34

DEDHAM, March 26.—Joseph Sears doesn't believe in race suicide. He is fifty-seven years old, a carpenter by trade, lives on Hillside avenue, off High street, East Dedham, and with the birth of a child in the family yesterday is now father of his thirty-fourth child. Of this family, into which four sets of twins have been born, only six boys and six girls remain. Here is the list:

First wife—Lucy Boudrie, married at age of seventeen in New Bedford; eighteen children, including three sets of twins; oldest child thirty-nine.

Second wife—Rosalie Chamberlain, married at Taunton; sixteen children, with one pair of twins.

Thirteen grandchildren.

"Yes, that's some family," said Mr. Sears to-day to a reporter, "but I wish all were living."

HOPSITAL FUND GROWS.

A total of $255,705.14 has been received by the managers of the Children's Hospital for the erection of the new building on Longwood avenue. The subscriptions since March 15, when the managers made their last announcement, have amounted to $10,655.14.

SOLD OUT TO RAYMOND

In all the years we have been delivering merchandise to the people, this week caps the climax.

First, all the stock of notions and smallwares from Williams Bros., wholesale, 77 Bedford St., after they settled with the insurance people and threw out everything that was damaged.

Second, entire stock of the Standard Soap Works, 16-18 Beach St., Boston. Soap enough to clean up the State House in Albany, the State House in Boston and every other section of Massachusetts that has not already been cleaned up by Mr. Foss, except a certain place in Pemberton Square, and we think there is not soap enough in the country to clean that.

All the stock of the Scandinavian Fur & Leather Co., New York City, bought through the New Netherland Bank. All elegant automobile goods. Ready Monday morning.

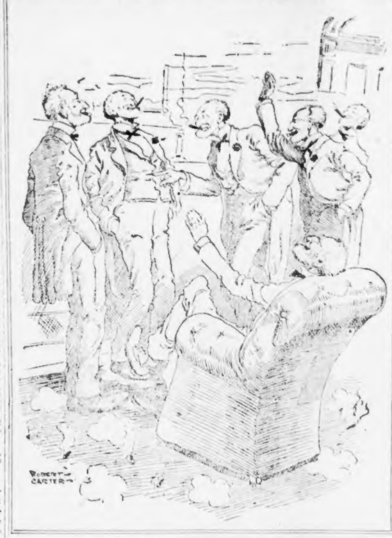

Yesterday all the stock of the American Clothing Co., 90-92 Washington St., Boston. A great stock of clothing and men's furnishing goods, which we positively agree to sell at an average of considerably less than half the prices it was marked when we bought it. Ready Saturday morning.

We promise the people the greatest values in the best merchandise during the next few weeks ever given from ANY store—no exceptions.

Yours truly,
RAYMOND

HAMMERSTEIN CHANGES HIS OPERA PLANS

Much disappointment was felt to-day at the announcement that Oscar Hammerstein had decided to cut the Boston season of the Manhattan opera company from two weeks to one week. A large number of tickets had been sold for the second week, beginning April 4. Subscribers and others who have engaged tickets for the second week can have them exchanged during the coming week at the Boston Theatre box office or have their money refunded at their option.

On account of the elimination of the second week an extra matinee of "Tales of Hoffman" is announced for next Thursday.

The explanation given by Mr. Hammerstein's representative in Boston is that Mme. Tetrazzini must sail for Europe a week sooner than she had expected on account of the illness of a sister in Milan.

Hammerstein's Opera Company is a French company. Sometimes it sings opera in Italian, but its great successes are French works. The Metropolitan Company which visits Boston Monday is an Italian company, and will sing all but one of its performances in Italian.

Friendly, Oh Sure!

But irony of fate. The French Hammerstein Company will occupy the Boston Theatre, only a short walk from the North End, where there is a gallery and a sale of rush seats, while the Metropolitan Italian Company will be away up town and there is no rush at all.

The Boston Italians are all devoted to Caruso, but they are also loyal to Tetrazzini, queen of light sopranos, and like the rest of the population of Boston, will probably divide their allegiance between the two conflicting opera companies.

There isn't any war between the Metropolitan and Manhattan Companies. Oh, no. The mere fact that they arrive here the same week, play conflicting dates and bid for the patronage of the same public makes them very friendly.

Hammerstein this year has a wonderful money getter in "Elektra." This is the latest work of Dr. Richard Strauss, a German gentleman with a beautiful disposition. Strauss writes music to fit nightmares.

In looking about for a harrowing theme Dr. Strauss discovered an old Greek tragedy. Elektra, a Greek princess discovers that her mother murdered her father in order to have him out of the way of her lover.

Elektra accordingly informs her brother Orestes and the loyal pair scheme to revenge papa. Orestes does the dirty work. He hits his mother in the head with a heavy axe and likewise disposes of the lodger. Then Elektra dances a mad, frenzied dance of joy.

Caruso the Star.

The opera is in one act and takes two hours to perform. Strauss's music is supposed to suggest all the delightful emotions occuring during the action of the piece. The dripping of blood from a severed head is musicaly suggested, the blow of the axe, the hate of Elektra, the fury of Orestes and many other equally abhorrent ideas are told in music.

The public is protected from the full horror of the affair by the fact that it doesn't understand the music and one theme sounds much like another.

However, "Elektra" is sensational and everybody wants to see it.

The Boston Opera House will see on the same night a wonderful performance of "Aida." Caruso will sing Rhadames, if the Black Hand does not get him. Emmy Destinn will be Aida, Louise Homer, Amneris and Amato the old King of Ethiopia.

Toscanini will be on the conductor's platform and the performance should be a memorable one. If you go to see "Elektra" you miss this wonderful "Aida" and vice versa. Is it any wonder that opera goers are walking around with a worried look.

And the most amazing thing of all is the fact that after fifteen weeks of grand opera by the local company, enough people have already purchased tickets to fill both the Boston Opera House and the Boston Theatre.

What is the musical centre of America? Answer—Boston.

FEAR BANK RUN IN BRIBE CASE IN PITTSBURG

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 26.—Extreme precautions to prevent runs on the six banks involved in the bribery of city officials, in connection with the municipal depository ordinance, will be taken when the city's money is withdrawn.

When the graft investigation is resumed Monday, it will centre on the sources of the alleged $102,500 fund said to have been raised by the banks for corruption purposes. The threat of indictments made in the grand jury's report, if the directors and officers of the six banks do not tell of their operations immediately, has caused uneasiness in financial circles for fear of its effect on the depositors in the banks. The fund, it is alleged, was divided as follows:

William Brand, now in the penitentiary, $15,000; John F. Klein, the councilman, whose confession "tore the lid off," $14,000; Hugh Ferguson, one of the council chiefs, $12,650; ex-select councilman Charles Stewart, $12,150; Joseph C. Wasson, now in the penitentiary, $11,150; Morris Einstein, $8,000; Henry M. Bolger, $500; select councilman, $12,000; common councilman, $9,100; family of William Madden, while he was in prison, $2,500; two city clerks, $4,000; defence fund, $5,000; fund for newspapermen, $1,750.

POSTAL CAMPAIGN BEGUN FOR PAROLE OF 'LITTLE CAPTAIN'

PITTSBURG, March 26.—A post card campaign for parole to-day was launched by John F. Klein, the "Little Captain," whose confession first bared the magnitude of the councilmanic graft here. These post cards show a likeness of Captain Klein, a picture of his steamboat, another of a coffin lid, with an observation that no man is ever down until he is boxed up and nailed in. Also there is a skull and cross-bones and an appeal for public sympathy which reads in part:

Kind Sir—I am on my way to the stone pile for 1,277½ days and 1,277½ nights, with time off for good behavior and I assure you that it will be good. I will have to serve 914 days, two years and seven months, requiring 8,226 meal tickets for Mrs. Klein and the two babies.

Did I commit a crime? I didn't. I didn't help build the State Capitol. Won't you some day assist in having me paroled, after you think I have been sufficiently punished?

He has sent out thousands of these cards as Easter greetings.

PERSONAL ITEMS

MARY ANDERSON'S husband, A. F. de Navarro, has arrived in America on the Lusitania, which had beaten all records over the long course, but was not fast enough to permit him to see his mother alive. "Until the death of my mother there was always a hope that my wife and myself would come to this country to live," he said. "Now I do not know how she will feel."

MRS. O. H. P. BELMONT entertained fifty men and women from the Bronx at her residence, No. 477 Madison avenue, and organized a Bronx branch of the Political Equality Association. It is Mrs. Belmont's intention to open a clubhouse in the Bronx to serve as a neighborhood settlement and a suffrage headquarters.

MISS MARGARET CARNEGIE on her thirteenth birthday gave a check for $5,000 to endow a free bed in the children's ward of the Pasadena Hospital at Pasadena, Calif. It is rumored that her father will give close consideration to two large gifts to institutions in Pasadena as soon as he returns home.

UNITED STATES SENATOR CULBERSON of Texas has arrived at the Sanitarium at Clifton Springs, N. Y., for a brief rest. He is accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Mary Schluter. It is said that he is not seriously ill, but has gone to the sanitarium for a much needed rest.

VLADIMIR BOURTSEFF, Russian revolutionist and exposer of Russian government spies, who has been repeatedly reported dead of late, has returned to New York from a two weeks' tour of the West, highly amused at the stories of his demise.

MRS. WALDORF ASTOR, formerly Miss Nannie Laughorne, was a saloon voyager on the Lusitania, arriving at New York. Mrs. Astor said the sole object of her trip was to visit her sister, Mrs. Reginald Brooks of Boston.

MRS. ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON, widow of the novelist, is ill at Mexico City, as a result, it is believed, of being in a high altitude. It is not believed her illness is dangerous.

PRIZE WINNERS IN "FORTY IMMORTALS" CONTEST IN THE SUNDAY AMERICAN

THE prize winners in the BOSTON AMERICAN'S "Forty Immortals" Contest, which closes to-day, will be announced in SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

The proposition is this: Who do you think are the forty Boston men NOW LIVING who are most entitled to places in a Hall of Fame? Any man living in the great metropolitan district which looks to Boston as its hub may be named.

In this contest women are not eligible, though there are a number of Boston women who would undoubtedly be awarded honors in Boston's Hall of Fame if we ever have one. Perhaps the AMERICAN will later ask for Boston's forty most distinguished women.

The BOSTON AMERICAN offers prizes, consisting of a first prize of $10, a second prize of $5 and five prizes of $1 each for the best lists of forty.

Following are some of the good lists received.

Representative Men.

"Live Ones" Editor:

Dear Sir—I submit the following list of "Immortals." I regret that the rules of the contest do not admit the name of Julia Ward Howe, who certainly belongs to the "Immortals."

TWO TROLLEY LINES TIED UP

One of those Tremont street yellow trolley cars, which ply between the South station and Roxbury Crossing went off the rails at Summer and Federal streets at 8:45 a. m. to-day. It was twenty minutes before the car was jacked back upon the rails. Long strings of vehicles gathered. Hundreds of incoming commuters from the South Station were bothered by the blockade. Trolleys were sent around through the side streets. The derailing was caused by the rear wheels of the car not taking the switch properly.

There was a second tie-up of cars out in Somerville during the morning rush hour.

The Highland avenue and Pearl street trolley lines in Somerville were tied up for forty minutes. An out-bound Magoun square car, in running from Cross into Pearl street, took the turn with its forward wheels but kept on the straightaway with its rear wheels, thus blocking all four tracks.

THE EARLY BIRD WILL GET THIS TO-MORROW

Better get your BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN before breakfast to-morrow. If you don't you are liable to be disappointed.

Among other things which are creating a large demand for to-morrow's SUNDAY AMERICAN will be the appearance of Mutt and Jeff in color in the comic section.

PNEUMONIA TAKES DIAMOND EXPERT

Pneumonia caused the death of Henry Mortimer Kimball, for nearly a quarter of a century a permanent guest at the Hotel Vendome, and who was one of the best known and most successful diamond experts in the world.

BISHOP BRINGS BLESSING FROM POPE AT ROME

Bishop Joseph G. Anderson to-day resumes the duties of his office in the rectory of St. Paul's Church, Dorchester, after an absence of several weeks during which he visited Rome, had an audience with the Pope. He brought back the Pope's blessing for the people of Boston.

During the next few weeks Bishop Anderson will have full charge of the archdiocese of Boston as Archbishop O'Connell has announced his intention of taking a trip to Washington shortly after Easter. The Bishop will pontificate at the solemn high mass to-morrow, in St. Paul's Church, Dorchester.

He left Boston January 3 and two days later sailed from New York accompanied by the Rev. P. J. Supple, pastor of St. John's Church, Roxbury, and spiritual director of the Archdiocesan Federation of Catholic Societies. They landed at Naples and journeyed from there to Rome, where they were cordially received by the Pope.

"We found the Pope in the best of health," said Bishop Anderson. "To him I expressed my gratitude for the honor he conferred in elevating me to the episcopacy, and I told him of the flourishing condition of the Catholic Church in the Boston archdiocese.

"He sent his blessing to the people of Boston, and especially to the parishioners here at St. Paul's Church.

"I knew very little about the Fairbanks' incident. In Rome, where everyone knows the conditions, and understands the regulations governing the reception of visitors at the Vatican, the affair attracted comparatively small attention.

"Leaving Dr. Supple in Rome, I spent some time among the cities of northern Italy, and then went on to Paris. I found the city, with the exception of the suburbs, practically recovered from the effect of the floods. The outlying sections of the city were badly damaged but the city itself showed but little the havoc caused by the rising waters of the Seine."

Bishop Anderson's stay in London was marked by his presence at a great celebration held by several hundred Catholic men in the Hotel Cecil. The Bishop was asked to participate. The speakers included John Redmond and other leaders of the Irish Parliamentary party, who spoke in an optimistic vein on the prospect of Ireland's political freedom.

SON CUT OFF BY HOLLANDER

Sumner Rose Hollander, because of conduct distasteful to his father, is disinherited in the will of Louis P. Hollander, head of the firm of L. P. Hollander & Co., the Boylston street merchants. His children, however, are provided for in the will.

The estate of Mr. Hollander aggregated $407,430.95, of which $103,939.76 is located in New York. Administration fees and other expenses have reduced it to $373,925.24.

All of the personal estate is left in fee simple to Mr. Hollander's widow, and the residue of the estate is to be held in trust for her. Upon her death it is to be divided among the children of Sumner Hollander, Lorita Dickerman and Elmer Hollander, the last two children of the testator.

WARNING OF DEATH WAS SENT TO GIRL

The Malden police believe that a death threat was sent to Miss Edna Kaulback, who accompanied John Bruce, the life insurance agent who was held up and robbed of $3,450 by Frederick H. Rice, alias Alfred R. Kehew, alias Frederick Haskell. A few days before the robbery Miss Kaulback found on her desk a note reading: "Prepare to meet your God." Rice denies all knowledge of the note.

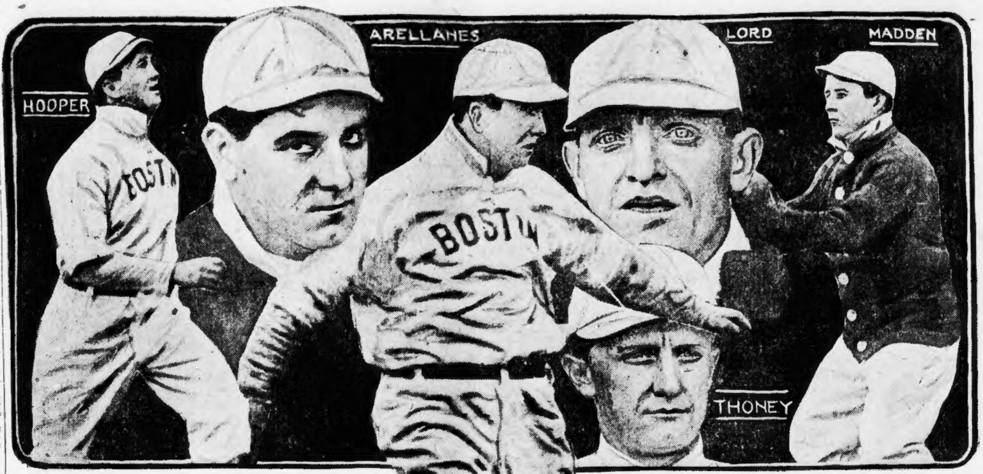

SICILIANS WILL PLAY A COMEDY

Salvatore Lo Turco, well known in all Sicilian clubs of this city and New York, is in Boston to-day to take a leading part in a comedy called "I Mafiusi" to be placed in Union Hall, April 4, by the Sicilian Club of Boston. The play deals with the Sicilian underworld and will be rendered in the Sicilian dialect. Joseph A. Morenda, one of the leading Sicilians of Boston, has the leading juvenile part in the play. The twenty people in the cast will start rehearsals next week.

LANGFORD BOXES BARRY-BURNS BOUT WINNER

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 26.—As prize fighters go the Jim Barry-Jack Burns contest may not seem to be the classiest in the world, but at that the result will mean a great deal to the winner. If Barry wins he will be able to claim the credit of defeating California's newest aspirants for championship preferement, namely "Gunboat" Smith and Jack Burns. Moreover, Barry wil qualify for a match with Sam Langford, in Los Angeles on April 9, which as things have turned out, is quite a distinction.

Langford, at the present time, on account of his effective work in the ring and his willingness to tackle anybody and everybody without picking or choosing, is almost as much in the public eye as either Jack Johnson or Jim Jeffries.

While Barry's chances defeating Langford are not over bright, still he has a chance, and, if he fails to dispose of Burns, he will be turned down by Promoter Tom McCarey, and, it almost goes without saying, that Burns will be substituted for Barry in the affair with Langford.

Should Burns defeat Barry he will enjoy the distinction of being the only one of California's new crop of heavies that has made good.

A while ago we had Schulken, Gunboat Smith and Burns. Smith removed Schulken from the list of possibilities and Barry took care of Smith.

Locating Promising Novices.

If Barry defeats Burns it will put a crimp in the business of locating "promising novices," and it will be a brave man who will announce in the near future that he has discovered another championship possibility.

If it is Burn's fate to be downed by the Chicago fighter, I'll warrant he will give a good account of himself before he is taken into camp. The Salinas man possesses two good qualifications. He is game and he takes kindly to hard knocks. I do not mean that he thrives on the bumps and shocks incidental to boxing, but that they do not feaze him to the extent they do some others.

The ring game has known lots of fellows who had loads of courage, but who wilt quickly under rough treatment. No better example could be adduced than poor Bill Squires of Australia. Squires is a lion-hearted fellow, but is it that the walls of his head are no thicker than eggshells, so that a very light blow addles his gray matter and puts him into the hands of the timekeeper. Spider Kelly, who directed Burns' fight against Gunboat Smith at Dreamland believes that in powers of absorption Burns is a second Joe Goddard, and it was generally conceded that Goddard in his time was the durable Dane of the heavyweight class.

Gaze Was Steady.

"In one of the early rounds Smith caught Burns squarely with a right," said Spider Kelly. "I thought to myself 'That settles it,' for I knew Smith to be a terrific puncher. To my surprise Burns just shook his head and kept going. When he came back to his chair I looked into his eyes for signs of the rattle but his gaze was steady.

"'Shook you up a bit that time,' I asked him as a feeler, and he said: 'No, didn't hurt me.' He looked the part, too, and I made up my mind right there that Burns is a fellow who will have to be reckoned with. He has grit and staying power, which strange as it may seem, don't always go together."

They think down in Los Angeles that Barry has a good chance with Langford for the reason that Barry is a much harder puncher than Flynn. In view of what Spider Kelly has to say about Burns' receptive powers Barry will have a chance next Tuesday night to show whether the Los Angeles estimate of his hitting ability is correct.

BOB GANLEY WON'T SIGN WITH KANSAS

Bob Ganley, former centre fielder of the Washington team and who was to be captain of the Kansas City team this season, has refused to accept terms with Kansas. He was notified to-day by the Kansas City team that they will not pay the price he wants, therefore he reverts to the Philadelphia Americans.

Several teams have been after Ganley, including the Boston Nationals. Both Providence and Baltimore of the Eastern League were after him.

LORD PICKS JOE WOOD AS BEST PITCHER OUT

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 26.—Pitcher Frank Arellanes got his first workout in the box yesterday. He only did fairly well in the four innings. He told the writer this morning that he lacked control, but was glad he went in for part of the game.

"I could get the opposing batsmen in for two strikes easy enough, but when I tried to use a curve ball for the third strike the curve failed to work. That got me in bad, and with three and two in front of me I was forced to put the ball right over the pan. The result was they hammered me quite hard.

Several of the Reds' hits, however, would have been eaten by our outfielders had the grounds been larger.

Joe Wood, the speedy boy, worked the last five innings and for the last part had the Cincinnatis at his mercy. Joe's most glaring fault, and a very serious one in the big leagues, is his inability to hold a runner on first. He has the bad habit of giving his hand away by gradually leaning forward when he intends to pitch the ball. A base runner can watch for his motion and get two seconds start for second base.

The catcher's throw must be quick and accurate to nail the base stealer. It is safe to say that a man like Ty Cobb could steal second every time he reached first on Wood. Donovan will take the youngster in hand without delay and try to correct this serious fault.

Both Arellanes and Wood had worlds of speed. A little better control on the part of Wood is what they need just now.

"There's no reason why Wood shouldn't be the very best pitcher in the country if he could overcome this fault," said Captain Harry Lord to-day. "The boy has more speed than he needs, he has a fine change of pace and about everything else a pitcher needs. Furthermore he has youth."

TRAINING CAMP NOTES.

Donovan had his pitchers out to coach them in covering first base.

Mike Mitchell, the Reds' centre fielder, is certainly a star. A modest man, too.

Manager Jones, of the Hotel Majestic, gave a dinner last night to the visiting newspapermen of Boston, Cincinnati and Pittsburg.

Manager Clarke of the Pirates has forbidden all of his pitchers to use the spit ball. Leroy is the only Boston pitcher that employs a spitter.

Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pittsburg club, has bet all the Cincinnati newspaper men suits of clothes that the Pirates beat the Reds in the opening championship game.

Bob Spade, the Cincinnati pitcher, who has been ill here with tonsilitis, has been out for work for two or three days and hopes to go in the box before the series ends next Thursday.

Lobert, the Reds' third baseman, lost ten cigars to Bill Carrigan, betting the Red Sox catcher wouldn't make a base hit. In response Bill nearly took Lobert's foot off with a scorching rap to third base.

AUGUSTA TEAM COUNTED FASTEST IN THE SOUTH

By W. H. ROSS.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 26.—The Augusta Club is a pretty fast organization and has been working for several weeks under Cobb as coach. It is touted all over the South Atlantic League as the team which has the best look in for pennant honors this season. Norcum, the manager, is a fine outfielder and a hard hitter. The only thing, players say, that has kept him out of fast company is a weak arm. He is a veteran and knows a lot of inside ball. Like many another seasoned player with a crippled wing, he can manage to keep in the game by working down in this torrid section.

When the weather gets Summer hot here it lubricates the arm so that men who couldn't toss a ball across the street of a Northern burgh, manage to get loose enough around the shoulder to get by. Bierkotte comes from Ohio and is fast on the sacks. He led some minor league in the Middle West last season in stolen bases, having fifty-nine to his credit. It would be hard to beat Moran's record last year. He purloined eighty bases, besides hitting for .279. Billy McMahon, the Augusta third sacker, is a Lowell, Mass., boy, where he spends Winters in the plumbing business.

Billy Has Class.

The local club had a lot of chances to trade or sell this boy this Spring, but fans in Augusta would start a riot if any deal like that was pulled off. Billy has class. He has speed and is there with the stick. He is also of the scrappy breed while playing ball and last season had the goat of several umpires. Cad Coles, the centre fielder for Augusta is playing in his home town. He covers a lot of ground and hits all comers hard. Fans here can't understand why he has been overlooked so long by scouts from the majors.

Edwards, the second baseman, hails from a village in Iowa. This is his first year at playing professional ball. He is a big boy and has the style of a fine player. All the Doves have looked him over and are anxious to see him busy. Hauser, the first sacker, has played some around New Orleans. Pierce, Wagner and Hanifan are three twirlers who were with Augusta last season and the former says that he would like to go the full game against the Doves and hand it back to them for the way they slaughtered his shoots a year ago.

Shields, one of the Augusta catchers, is a Providence, R. I., lad. Canney, the other, is from Binghamton.

Tom Tuckey is in better shape than at any time since he signed on with the Boston Nationals. He is a steady, hard-working twirler who always takes things as they come and makes no holler.

Beck Was Game.

Fred Beck got a belt in the pit of the stomach from a batted ball. It was as paralyzing as a solar plexus punch. But Beck was game. He managed to pick up the sphere and put the runner out. Then he plunged in a heap over the base line and was down and out long enough for Maffit Flaherty to count a thousand. Dr. Martel and Trainer Jimmy Neary rendered first aid treatment and some of the stunts they performed on Fred suggested a oesteopathic clinic upside down. During this special act Fred Lake played first bag, inviting the men who came to the bat to hit the ball at him.

Along in the ninth inning there was a commotion on the other side of the field where the Augusta team was warming up for their own scrub game. That facetious hound Lady Maud picked up the mitt which one of Norcum's men dropped while digging down for a chaw of terbacker and carried it under the Bungy vilea. There she was scared from her prey but what came forth with it when recovered with a long handled rake, reflected upon the efficacy of the prohibition law in Georgia. Kirb White, the sorrel top from Hillsboro, Ohio, was the star slugger for the Peaches. He rapped out a brace of bingles during the matinee and it is a question of eyesight whether he was not robbed of another.

All through the entertainment the Doves stretched hits to the limit and some of the slides left the base line looking like a cotton patch after it had been traversed by a mule team and a plough. Bunge thought the fans were getting too much ball playing for nothing and barricaded the gate. There was a mob outside in a lynching mood when he had to open the portal to chase a foul ball that had gone over the roof of the fifty-cent enclosure. The sound of the crowd swarming into the grand stand can be compared to nothing except a cavalry charge on a board walk.

BILLIARD CUE EXPERTS PLAY AT IMPERIAL

The three-cushion carom tournament for the championship of New England, now going on at the Imperial Billiard Room, is one of more than high repute. There are some of the best players in the country in it. Players that would be able to compete with De Oro, Heuston or Evans. Any of them are liable to average as much as the highest professional.

James Ryan is probably the strongest player among them, and many pick him as sure winner, but as Arnold Daly says: "You never can tell."

Charles Threshie is also a man of strong, sturdy style, and one that can be relied upon. His style may be a little plain, but his work is all so cool, calculating and methodical, that one is not surprised at the beautiful results he obtains.

Frank Jones was formerly a resident of New York, and from that fact he has probably more versatility around the table than some of our "always been at home" players. Jones would prefer to make a freak shot than a natural.

Ben Laurie is too well known among our Boston players to need any description. Perhaps it would be fitting to say that where he feels he can defeat any of the contestants at the start, if he does not do so in every instance, he wins half of his games, and the other half he gives his adversary an awful scare.

Charles Campbell is the old-time billiard champion, and one who could be called a battle-scarred veteran. He still retains much of his former brilliancy and at times makes some of his old time shots that brings down the house.

A. G. Mason, the youngest and less experienced player among these professionals is called the "dark horse," and that fact is proven by the fact that he took Charles Threshie into camp the other night. His style is of the extreme painstaking order and all through his work one can see that he is using his head, as well as his hands and eyes. His safety or placing of the balls to bother his adversary is of the highest class.

Aside from four prizes a handsome gold emblem will be given to the winner which will be emblematic of the championship of three cushions for New England.

JACK TWIN WANTS TO MEET LANGFORD

Jack Twin Sullivan now comes out with the statement that he would meet Sam Langford at Tom McCary's club in Los Angeles. Jack will try out several Harvard students at the Riverside Boat Club Sunday afternoon, and invites all the boys out to see him.

Mike Twin Sullivan, who is acting as manager to brother Dan, is anxiously awaiting for a reply from Jimmy Clabby of Milwaukee for a ten-round bout with Dan.

JEFF'S LIFE STORY

TAD'S story of the life and battles of Jim Jeffries, which has been printed serially in the Evening American, will be a feature of the Sunday American. In the instalment which will be printed next Sunday Rev. Alex. Jeffries, father of the great fighter, tells of the early life of the man who will attempt to regain the world's heavyweight title from Jack Johnson on July 4.

BOSTON C. BOYS IN THE FIELD

Candidates for the Boston College Baseball team, which have been having indoor practice for the last two weeks in the college 'Gym' on James street were out today to the college grounds on Massachusetts avenue for their first out-door practice. The squad is the largest that has been out trying for the team in the history of the college.

There are fifty candidates and among the most promising men for the box are Francis Harrington of Wakefield, who pitched for Holy Cross last year; "Dick" Lane, a former pitcher of the B. C. "Prep" team; "Bill Murphy, "Vin" Greene, Thomas Garrity and Florence Gillis.

Among the catchers are Miah Falvey, "Jack" Ryan, Leo Noonan, who caught a slashing game for the team last year, and Joseph P. McHugh, a former catcher of Boston College High. Other players who are trying are "Steve" Mahoney of Somerville, who played left field for Holy Cross last year, but who is trying for first base this year, Leo Supple, "Buck" Donahue, a former star second baseman at Newton High who will try for that same position this year; "E" Butler, formerly of Wakefield High; "Buddie" Ryan, a member of last year's college team; George McIntyre, "Jack" Sweeney, Raymond Lyons, James Lenihan, John Murphy, John Donavon, who was captain of last year's Rockland High team; John McIntyre. "Pat" Dee, a former Cambridge Latin School star and Frank Burke, pho played on last year's team.

Manager David B. Waters has a long schedule arranged, but owing to a disagreement as to a date between one of the Maine colleges he has not published it as yet. It consists of twenty games with ten of these to be played at the college's home grounds on Massachusetts avenue.

BISHOP HEAD OF STONEHAMS

Nelson Bishop will manage the Stoneham baseball team this season and the prospects for a good team is already in sight. Bishop has had years of experience as manager and that he knows everything about baseball is easily seen by his good judgment in the past.

He has been managing the strong Wakefield team for the past few years, and probably no man in this vicinity has sent as many youngsters into the major leagues as Bishop. Joe Casey of Detroit, Andy Owens of Chicago, Keady of Worcester, Abbott of Lynn and many others have played under his management.

Such men as Dan Reagan, the captain of the Wakefield team last season, and Herman of Lynn, have signified their intentions of wearing a Stoneham uniform this year. Bishop would like to hear from the managers of the strongest semi-professional teams in the State. He is arranging a hard schedule for his boys, and they will carry it out successfully. Address for dates Nelson Bishop, Wakefield.

BIG LIST OF ENTRIES FOR AMATEUR BOUTS

Judging from the entries received for the New England amateur boxing championships to be held at Mechanics Building next Monday night, nearly five hours will be required to get the winners of the titles in the different classes.

It is the intention of Athletic Manager George V. Brown of the B. A. A. to start the first bout at 7:30, and he expects to stage the last contest at 11 o'clock or a little later, which will give the out-of-town fans a chance to get their trains. The entries number sixty-four.

BASEBALL NEWS NOTES

Orvie Overall, the ponderous Cub twirler, lost a huge salary and about forty suits of clothes because of his bashfulness. A Chicago tailor offered Overall all this if he would pose for a week at a fashion show in the Windy City. Overall requested that some other Apollo be asked to fill the job.

Cy Young does not aspire to wind up his brilliant career as a ball player as a manager or captain. Cy desires only the humble position as pitcher and when his trusty right arm is strong no more he will retire.

Dode Birmingham, the Nap outfielder, has made a suggestion that would increase batting. Dode declares that the batter retired on a hit-and-run play be credited with a sacrifice hit. His contention is that the batter gives up his chances in the interest of advancing the base runner.

When Comiskey's Browns held Anson's Colts to a draw in the world's championship series of 1885 each player got $41.70 for prize money. Imagine the Pirate and Tiger stars playing for that sum now!

Jimmy Austin seems quite confident that he will have a cinch on third for the Highlanders. James will have to step some, or this Otis Johnson will beat him to the job.

* * *

How they do slow up as the years go by! Topsy Hartsel stole three bases last year and fifty-three a few seasons ago.

Boice, a recruit pitcher of the Naps, is a second Falkenburg, so far as height is concerned. Boice stands 6 feet 3½ inches in his bare feet. He weighs 200 pounds in playing condition.

Jim McGuire of the Naps is one big league manager who has little faith in the spitball. Not one of the Cleveland twirlers this season will boast the saliva delivery. This is a decided change from 1908, when about half Larry Lajoie's heavers used the moist ball.

Mike Mitchell has discovered a new wood for bats and says he will make a big effort to annex the honor of champion slugger of the league in 1910. He will not have to improve much on his last year's work.

* * *

If Pittsburg's new first baseman, Flynn, makes good it will mark the return of the Flynn family to fast company. Some very clever Flynns have played ball in earlier years, but not in recent seasons.

JOHNSON SOON GOES TO COAST

CHICAGO, March 26.—Jack Johnson has agreed to meet the demand of Jack Gleason that he leave Chicago April 16 for the Pacific Coast. The champion said to-day that he would start on that date and would be accompanied by his corps of trainers, handlers and advisers.

Enroute Johnson plans to fill theatrical dates at Omaha, Salt Lake City and Los Angeles, and then will appear in an exhibition under Gleason's management in San Francisco. Gleason expects Johnson to reach the latter city not later than May 1.

Sam Berger said to-day that he will offer $500, to any man who will stand before Jim Jeffries four full rounds when the big fellow gets down to hard training. It will be a standing offer and Berger expects in his manner to secure some good hard work outs.

MUTT AND JEFF SUNDAY—Greet your favorite old friends in the Comic Supplement of the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

KLAUS MATCHED TO FIGHT PAPKE

Frank Klaus, the Pittsburg middleweight, is signed up by Sid Hester to meet Bill Papke at his arena in San Francisco for twenty rounds on June 10. Hester had his plans all laid for a Ketchel-Papke match, but when Klaus beat Ketchel, Hester went right after the Pittsburg boy.

DRAW DECISION DISPUTED.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 26.—Tommy Bresnahan of Omaha won the decision over Tommy Gray of Chicago at the Memphis A. A., in the opinion of the crowd, but the referee declared it a draw. Gray was groggy at the end of the eight rounds, but he inflicted considerable punishment during the early rounds.

JEFF LEAVES ON BEAR HUNT

LOS ANGELES, March 26.—Jim Jeffries has gone to Mount Whitney, on another bear hunt. Jim was greatly benefited by his recent mountain trip and expects to take off considerable weight on this climb.

He will return March 30. It is expected that he will then leave for Santa Cruz to take up permanent training quarters.

BROWN BUYS A STAKE TROTTER FROM PARKER

Albia, the green trotter whose purchase from F. D. Parker, Shawsheen River Farm, Bedford, by W. C. Brown, president of the New York Central Railroad, was made through Mr. Brown's agent, Will Logan, who has been in this city for a few days past, hunting for a trotter that looked like a stake prospect.

Albia is a seven-year-old bay mare by Bingin, 2:06¾, out of Narim, daughter of Nancy Hanks, 2:04, and was purchased at the closing out of the stud of J. Malcom Forbes at Readville in 1904 by Mr. Parker for $3,200. She produced two foals while owned by Mr. Parker, and until sent to Bob Proctor at the Readville track last Summer had never had regular training. She developed speed very rapidly at the end of the season, and during the Lexington meeting showed a trial in 2:10¼. She also was timed a quarter in 30½ seconds, timed by several reliable horsemen.

The mare will remain in Proctor's stable to be extensively staked on the grand circuit. Proctor also has Mr. Brown's three-year-old colt Bergen, by Bingara, that is eligible to all of the futurity events.

Albia is a full sister to Vice Commodore 2:11, the premier stallion at John Madden's trotting stud, Hamburg Place, Ky. She is a fine individual, closely resembling the great Nancy Hanks, though larger. As she is perfectly sound and has had scarcely any drilling it is reasonable to believe that she will train on and add much to the reputation of the Nancy Hanks family.

TY COBB HAS THE TIGERS WORRIED

DETROIT, March 26.—Although Ty Cobb, champion batsman in the American League, was to have reported at the Tiger training camp at San Antonio two weeks ago, he has failed to show up there. Reports are floating from Detroit fans in this city that there is some hitch between the Tiger management and its star right fielder.

STRAIGHT DOPE FOR SPORT FANS

IF THERE IS ANY QUESTION in your minds about the glorious Spring time of baseball being here, take a look over the back lots in any part of Boston this afternoon.

pers has dug up and printed a story about a young twirler named Charlie Friene, who is being given a try-out with the Quakers, being the first and only ambidextrous heaver in the two big leagues. Well, let me state that this young man has his wires crossed. Charles "Babe" Adams, who gained fame in the last world's championship series, beat young Mr. Friene to the honors of being the first ambidextrous pitcher to enter the major leagues. Charley Adams can shoot the benders around nearly as well with his left wing as he can with his right, and he certainly can shoot 'em some with his right.

WILLIE FITZGERALD, THE "FIGHTing Harp," is breaking back into the game after a long absence, and a whole lot of Boston friends of the erstwhile crack lightweight are willing to get real money that the "Harp" makes good. He mixes it with Young Erne this evening in Philadelphia, and I was handed a stable tip yesterday that the newspapers will not have a chance to give the decision. The tipper dopes it that the "Harp" will let one of his wallops make the decision. Still, you never can tell about these come-backs.

WE'VE SEEN MANY BOXERS GO ON the stage and the majority of them have turned out to be hams as far as acting goes, but it seems to me that there's a great chance of two boxers going behind the footlights and not be hams. Those two are Mike and Jack Twin Sullivan. Mike dropped in to tip me off that he had been asked for terms for a twenty weeks' engagement on the Orpheum circuit. Mike didn't hesitate long in writing back a figure he thought good to both parties and we may have a chance to see the Twins in this right soon. Mike and Jack are the singing kids when it comes to warbling and they tell me that Jack has some of the flossiest foot work ever. Anyway whether they go on the boards or not, take it from me, Mike can certainly do stunts with some of these young sounds. Eddie Leonard, with his Southern Rose song, hasn't got a whole lot on Mike according to my dope.

KID BOULT, A HUSKY LOOKING brunette boxer, sprung his hand-engraved visiting card on my office boy yesterday and then followed it in to announce that he doesn't bar any local man at 142 pounds. Boult tips me that he hails from Norfolk, Va., where he is considered something of a walloper. He may be. He looks it. Here's hoping some enterprising matchmaker will give him a chance to show us what he can do.

F. E. L.—A CONSTANT READER, Portland, Me.—The advertising manager would try to collect from me if I printed your ad for Kid Cummings.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

Dear Sir—I have always been under the impression that it was one of the principles of all well-managed newspapers not to publish any letters which were not indorsed by the signature of the sender. I see by your publication of th 17th that you do not go by this.

On the above date you allowed to be published in your column a letter containing information concerning a prize fighter with the instructions to address all communications to No. 17 Aspinwall avenue, Brookline.

There is nobody at this address who knows anything whatever about it.

Hoping that you will be considerate enough to publish this letter, I remain.

Yours truly,

WM. H. McCOLLOUGH.

P. S.—I suppose this will meet with the usual amount of sarcasm, of which you seem to have a generous supply, but I guess I can stand it if you will publish this. WM. H. Mc.

No. 17 Aspinwall avenue, Brookline, Mass.

Boston, Mass.

I don't see any occasion for sarcasm in answering your letter, as you are evidently in earnest. You have me doped wrong if you don't know that I try to answer decently written and honest letters in the same manner. Now, about that letter of the 17th. It bore a signature and a request for the initials only to be used. In crossing out the signature, probably I omitted writing in the initials. If the wrong address was given I am sorry, but, really, I am too busy to look up all the addresses and it is possible some mistake was made.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

Will you please publish this in your paper; I have under my care a young fighter named Kid App of North Woburn, who has recently won a decision over James Maguire of Woburn, and I would like to match him against some of the 122-pound fighters of Boston or vicinity.

JOHN O'NEIL.

North Woburn, Mass.

DELIVERING THE GOODS

Today being the day before Easter we will be kept busy delivering the clothes promised. It isn't the easiest thing in the world to deliver goods and deliver them right. Your experience in business will bear us out in that statement. Yet we will deliver hundreds of suits to our customers today, every suit perfect in fit, style and workmanship.

Every suit will be tried on and it won't leave our shop unless it satisfies us. We are more anxious to please ourselves than we are to please our customers. When we are satisfied—after 18 years in business at the same location—you can rest assured that our customers will have little cause to complain.

All this leads up to the question of your spring suit. We don't know what kind of a day it is today in the matter of weather as we have to write our advertising a day ahead. Yesterday, though, ought to set your mind to thinking about a new suit in a hurry. That doesn't mean a ready-made suit. It means a suit made for you by a tailoring firm that knows how to make the right clothes.

The prices for suits (or overcoats) at our shop range $15 to $25, and they are worth $30 to $40 of any man's money. The fact that you save about $15 on a suit at our tailor shop is important, but the best thing about the transaction is that you are satisfied with what you get. You can't get satisfaction at some tailor shops—no matter what you pay. Open late tonight.

A Great Love Story by Beatrice Fairfax!

"MRS. DOT"

The story of the play in which Miss Billie Burke appears at the Hollis Street Theatre, Boston, next week

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THINGS weren't going well with Mrs. Dot.

True, she was young, she was rich, she was a widow and she was beautiful. But what was the good of all that if she couldn't have the one thing she wanted most of all?

For Mrs. Dot was in love, and the man she loved had very thoughtlessly engaged himself to another girl. Also he had lost every penny he owned, a fact which, though it worried him considerably, troubled Mrs. Dot not one whit.

Gerald Haldane was a queer compound of honor and frivolity. Related to the best blood of the nobility, he was always welcome in the homes of anxious mammas who hoped some day to see their daughters well married and perhaps wearing a Countess's crown.

For be it known that, while he was now but plain Gerald Haldane, there was a possibility—a remote one, it is true, but nevertheless a possibility—that he might some day inherit the estates, and along with them the title of Lord Hollington, his only relative.

But this was so remote a chance that Gerald himself treated it as a jest and not a few far-sighted mammas counted it as a negligible quantity.

Lord Hollington, the relative, was now in the height of his career, at the head of a command in India. He was young, hale, hearty, and might any day take unto himself a wife and hand the title and the estates on to a young Hollington, yet unborn.

There was no hope in that direction, and to make matters worse, Gerald, in an attempt to retrieve a sorely depleted fortune, had been tempted into stocks, and lost all in a foolish investment.

And thus it was that he found himself, one fine day, an object of abject despair, his fortune gone, his troth plighted to a young woman who could, in no way, bring to him a fortune.

Even though she should release him, he bethought himself, had he not deliberately forgotten the beautiful, charming widow, Mrs. Dot, the one woman who now, above all others, with her inherited millions, could aid him in his crippled financial condition?

He Loved the Dashing Widow.

For, in truth, he secretly loved the beautiful widow. He had felt his heart go out to her the first time he ever saw her, and whether he knew it or not, Mrs. Dot loved him—nay, she desired him for her very own—and what is more, she was determined to have him.

But—and here was the dilemma—Gerald had very foolishly given his heart away to a pretty, little toy of a girl and under the glamour of romantic surroundings promised to make her his own. How could he go back on his word?

And Mrs. Dot?—sooner or later she must hear of it.

Ah, well, Gerald—though he might be broken in fortune, and desired nothing better than a union with Mrs. Dot—was nevertheless a man of honor, a man of his word. Even though he did not love Nellie Sellinger, the pretty daughter of Lady Sellinger, he would marry her, because he had given her his word—the word of an English gentleman—that he would.

Mrs. Dot hadn't seen Gerald for a week, and being an unconventional young person who generally did as she pleased she called at his apartment to see what was the matter.

And Charles, his servant, had the effrontery to say he was "not at home" when she could quite plainly hear voices coming from the apartment.

"What nonsense," said Mrs. Dot. "I want to see him particularly." So in she had walked, and then Gerald had told her of his lost fortune and his engagement.

"The long and short of it is that you are ruined," had been Mrs. Dot's answer to the first announcement.

"Absolutely."

"I'm delighted to hear it."

"Dot!"

"I am. I can't help it. The thing for you to do now is marry money."

"Thank you," said Gerald stiffly. "I don't think I quite see myself marrying for money."

An Item of $60,000 a Year.

"I have never yet heard that the course of true love ran less smoothly because a charming widow had sixty thousand a year," said Mrs. Dot demurely.

"What do you mean?"

"I've seen your eyes light up when I cam into the room, and I've seen you scowl at any young fool who paid me an outrageous compliment. I've seen the pleasure it gave you to do me any trifling service. I've seen you watch for the opportunity of putting my cloak over my shoulders after the play, and I'm sorry—but I've come to the conclusion that you're in love with me. I dare say the fact has escaped your notice, but that's only because men are so deploringly stupid."

"Do you think it's kind to laugh at me?" said Gerald gravely.

"But I'm not laughing, my dear; I'm so pleased and so flattered and so touched. At first I thought I saw these things only because I wanted to. I was afraid it was only my hand that was trembling. And at last, when I was certain that you were just as much in love with me as I was with you, I cried for two hours."

There was a long pause. Then Gerald said gravely:

"I'm afraid you'll think me an utter brute. I ought to have told you long ago that I've been engaged to Nellie Sellinger for over a year."

"Gerald!" cried Mrs. Dot, reaching out two sparkling little hands toward him, "Why didn't you tell me?"

"No one knew anything about it and I was afraid of losing you. Oh, Dot, Dot, I love you so, and I'm so glad to be forced to tell you so."

"Tell me all about it, Gerald."

"We were staying at the same place in the country; it was a moonlight night, and it just happened, came to pieces in my hand, so to speak. Her mother disapproved and put us on a year's probation. She took Nellie abroad and said that if we were of the same mind in a year's time she would consent. The year is up and they are coming here for tea this afternoon."

"And what are you going to say to her?"

"I'm penniless. I'm bound to ask for my release."

"Then why have you been trying to make me utterly miserable?"

"If Nellie wants me to keep my promise I shan't draw back, and besides, there's something else I must tell you. You know that Lord Hollington is a relative of mine. Well, if anything happened to him everything would come to me."

"And of course Lady Sellinger would withdraw her opposition. But it won't; he'll live till he's eighty. Say again that you love me."

"I oughtn't to, yet," said Gerald tenderly.

"You've got to marry me," with a gay little laugh. "You've been trifling with my affections shamefully. Oh, we shall be so happy. I'll sit at home and darn your socks, and I shall hate it and I shall be so happy."

Was it any wonder that Mrs. Dot felt that things were not going well with her?

True, Gerald loved her, but of what good was that if Nellie Sellinger held him to his engagement? And the Sellingers would be there directly and Mrs Dot felt very unhappy and very miserable, and generally upset.

"Here they are," said Gerald nervously as the bell rang.

It would have been a delightful tea party under different conditions.

Lady Sellinger was an interesting, clever woman. Nellie was a pretty girl and James Blenkinsop and Freddie Perkins, the other guests, were amusing and clever. As things were, however, it was rather a sombre festivity.

Lady Sellinger had come to perform what she felt to be an unpleasant duty.

Nellie was half sad, half frightened; Mrs. Dot and Gerald were in suspense.

Freddie and Blenkinsop were the only ones wholly at ease.

But Mrs. Dot was not to be down for very long, and presently she was playing hostess very prettily, and asking Lady Sellinger if she took cream and sugar.

"Yes, please," said Lady Sellinger. "Gerald, come over here and sit by me. You can guess why I have come to-day."

"Yes."

"My dear Gerald, why don't you help me? What I have come to say is so very unpleasant. I've assured you for the last year that a marriage was absurd, and now I want to tell you that it's impossible. Love in a cottage is a delusion of youth."

"You married for love, Lady Sellinger?"

"Yes, and I don't want my daughter to make the same mistake."

"I may as well tell you," said Gerald, "that I've had very bad luck. I've come an absolute cropper."

"Dear me, that's very sad, but it simplifies matters, doesn't it?"

"Enormously," was the answer. "How about Nellie? How will she take it?"

"She's so reserved, poor dear. She never speaks of her feelings."

"H'm-m," said Gerald, gazing at the "poor dear," who was at that moment deeply engaged in a promising flirtation with Freddie.

"If anything happened to Lord Hollington," said Lady Sellinger. "You' dbe in very different circumstances, Gerald, wouldn't you?"

"Yes, but I trust he'll live to be a hundred."

ROMANCE OF TRUE LOVE

Teach Children to Respect Rights of Others

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

REAL good motherhood must include the universal motherhood. It must make a woman love her child so unselfishly that she is willing it should suffer while learning its lessons of kindness and thoughtfulness and protection, rather than to enjoy itself while taking away the toys, the privileges or the rights of other creatures—human or animal.

Almost every even half-civilized woman to-day shrinks from the sight of a cruel driver beating a horse, or from seeing the kicks and blows often given wretched street dogs and cats.

They are ready to report such cases of cruelty to the society. But hundreds of good women are permitting their children to grow up with cruel instincts; worse yet, they are teaching their children cruelty in the cradle.

Before you question this statement, listen and think.

Do you not, over and over, see a mother whip a hobby horse to amuse her child? Do you not see her punish an inanimate object, over which the baby has fallen, in order to distract the mind of the baby from its hurt?

I have seen rag dolls spanked, over and over again, and Teddy bears beaten by mothers to make a baby laugh.

What can you expect of that child when it grows up, save that it will revenge itself upon anybody who annoys it, by physical chastisement. The boy who has been educated to beat his hobby horse will beat his real horse when he drives one.

The time to begin to teach a child kindness and sympathy is in the cradle. Say to your children as soon as they are able to play with toys, "Be good to your toys; they need love and kind usage. Let your dollie rest sometimes, and handle her tenderly. Your Teddy bear and your hobby horse are needing your love."

If your baby stumbles and falls over a chair or rug, instill politeness and consideration into his plastic mind by teaching him to apologize. He will be quite as much amused and distracted if you say, "Excuse me, Mr. Rug, or Madam Chair, for my awkwardness; I hope I have not seriously hurt you," as he will if you say, "Naughty old rug, or chair, to hurt baby," and then proceed to rain blows on the poor, inoffensive object.

Teach your children to address their toy animals in a kind and well-modulated voice instead of a loud screech. You will benefit both the people of to-day and the animals of to-morrow by this course.

Tell them the truth that animals are very sensitive to noise, that a horse is a timid and loving creature, and that a loud, harsh voice frightens it and hinders it from doing its duty or obeying its owner. A low voice and a gentle hand will make any horse, if taken in time, faithful, willing and safe.

A horse will do twice the work and live twice the time in good health, if it is treated with respect, gratitude and love by its owner.

Teach this to your children while they are playing with their toys. They will never forget it.

THE PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS

All men seek happiness. To this there is no exception; what different means soever they employ, all tend to this goal. The reason some men go to the wars and others avoid them is but the same desire attended in each with different views. One will make no steps but toward this object. This is the motive of every action of every man, even of him who hangs himself.

Gay Plans For Post-Lenten Affairs

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Prominent among the smart events of the post-Easter season will be the exhibition by Battery A, which has such a large society backing, at the Park Riding School on the nights of April 11 and 12.

The men who are to take part have been practicing for some time and there promises to be fun galore over the rough riding and other mounted sports. They are planning to give a true picture of life at camp in addition to their many daring feats in the riding of the bareback squad, the mounted sports, drivers' drill and sub-calibre practice with the field guns.

Among the members of Battery A are representatives of such well known Boston families as the Wigglesworths, Drinkwaters, Fosters, Inches, Nesmiths, Emersons, Hallowells, Littles, Richardsons, Winsers, Sargents, Putnams, Gills, Millers, Maxwells, Clarkes, Hoopers, VanRensselaers, Bigelows, Lindseys, Storeys, and Minots.

Of the New York men there are Messrs. Dana, Barber, Kean, Dunlap, Huntington and Roosevelt, who are at Harvard.

There are rumors afloat to the effect that there will be a competition of rough riding and other sports between the Battery and Troop B. The new troop has become very popular in Boston and is eager to show the result of its two years' work.

John H. Sherburne, Jr., of Brookline is captain of Battery A, among the past commanders of which are Captain Samuel D. Parker, now fire commissioner and Captain J. C. R. Peabody.

Miss Martha Phillips of Boston and Beverly, who has been spending the Winter in Washington with her mother, Mrs. John C. Phillips, has returned to Washington after a short visit to Beverly. The Phillips family are trying to decide whether to spend the coming Summer in Beverly or to go abroad for a visit to their son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. William Phillips of the United States Embassy at London.

Mr. and Mrs. George von L. Meyer are again in Washington after a short visit in the South. The invitations to the large navy ball that is to be given next Wednesday night at the navy yard are issued in their name.

* * *

Stephen Whitney of New York, who is to be married to Miss Pauline Webster of Bay State road next Tuesday, is giving his bachelor dinner at Delmonico's in New York this evening.

Miss Amy Grant, who has begun in town a number of days, gives her postponed lecture on "Elektra" to-day.

* * *

Miss Mabel Boardman, sister of Mrs. Winthrop Murray Crane of Washington and Dalton, is arriving in town to-day for a short visit with friends here.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Frothingham have returned to Overlee, their delightful country home in Lenox. Mr. Frothingham has been in the South some weeks for the bird hunting season.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Bunting, who make their home at the Somerset, have decided to open their country home at Swampscott for a short time before they leave for California on the fifth of the month.

* * *

Dr. and Mrs. Clarence T. Blake of Marlboro stret will give their final reception of the season at their town house on Saturday afternoon, April 2.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. Bennett of Commonwealth avenue are to entertain for their second daughter, Miss Margaret Bennett, at their residence on the evening of April 8. The affair will be a small party for the younger set and friends of the young girl have been invited. Miss Bennett is on her way to Europe, having sailed about a week ago with her grandmother Bennett.

* * *

Robert S. Bradley of this city is visiting in New York this week and is stopping at the Hotel Belmont.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Mrs. Charles P. Searle of Commonwealth avenue are to open their country home, Inglisby, on Town Hill in Ipswich, early in the season and Mrs. Searle, her daughter and her sons will take up their residence there, while Mr. Searle will go down for the week-end at least. Mrs. Searle gave a luncheon this week of fourteen covers in honor of Mrs. Edward Howard Graham of Gloucester street.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Marsters of Roxbury announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Florence Marsters, to Walter Hastings Blood of Philadelphia.

Mrs. W. W. Blackman has decided to open her country home in Hingham on the first of the month.

* * *

Postponement till May has been made for the dance which Mrs. Felix Rockemann, of "The Haven," Readville, had planned to give in honor of the three Milton debutantes, Miss Constance Zerrahn, Miss Marion Weld and Miss Katherine L. Santonstall, on Thursday evening, April 7, at the Hoosick Whist Club at Ponkapog.

Vanity, Not Poverty, Is Girls' Worst Enemy

By WINIFRED BLACK

So it's poverty that is the worst enemy of the young girl, is it, Mrs. Reformer?

I don't agree with you.

I never saw a good girl driven to do wrong by poverty in my life.

And if you will come to think it over, neither did you.

By loneliness—Yes.

By unkindness at home—Yes.

By vanity and a fondness for dress—Yes.

By laziness and envy and a silly, empty-headed desire for excitement—Yes.

By poverty, by hard work, by self-denial—Never in the wide, wide world.

The best girls in the world are the working girls. You know they're good girls or they wouldn't be working. And they are working because they are good girls.

No woman who was ever worth the saving ever threw herself away because she was poor. Any girl who amounts to a row of pins in a paper would kill herself before she would be driven to any such way of getting out of poverty.

She would scrub the stones in the street for a living, and hold her head up with honest pride while she was doing it, and it would never enter her head to offer her good name for sale just to get a new dress or a Chantecler hat.

Good girls are made of different material than that.

Can you make an honest man steal because he wants a new tie, or thinks he ought to have a new hat?

You cannot. An honest man is born honest, and nothing but the most desperate need of some one he loves will ever make him anything else but honest.

The poor girls who stumble and walk in the crooked, dark paths that lead to misery do not deliberately walk in that path to get away from poverty. They are called by stronger voices than the voice of mere silly vanity.

Dress, dress, dress—I get so sick of the very sound of the word sometimes that I wish we could all be Indians and dress in a blanket, and be done with it.

What are you talking about to your daughter, little mother? New clothes—yours and hers and the neighbors'?

Vanity a cause for the ruin of young girls? Yes.

Poverty? Never.

Good Things to Eat

New vegetables from the South are coming into the markets of New England in increased quantities every day, but as yet only malefactors of great wealth can enjoy them, for the prices are enough to make the common people catch their breath.

Great bunches of beautiful asparagus adorn the green grocers' stalls, but he requires from fifty cents to $1 a bunch for them. Green peas sell for $2.50 a peck and string beans for twenty-five cents a quart.

Southern strawberries are more plentiful and of better quality now than they were a few days ago. The price has also declined sharply, as very good berries sell for fifty cents a box. A short time ago the same quality, or poorer berries, sold for seventy-five cents.

The price of potatoes continues downward. Aroostook county tubers which were quoted at sixty cents a bushel at wholesale not long ago are now selling for forty-five cents a bushel. The price has dropped about five cents during the past week.

The price of eggs continues to decline slightly from day to day, but not to the extent that one would expect at this season of the year.

The price of butter, on the other hand, is rising. Fancy Northern creamery butter which sold at wholesale for thirty-three and thirty-four cents a pound a short time since is now selling for thirty-four to thirty-six cents.

Sugar has reached the highest figure in the wholesale markets that it has attained previously in the past two years, and the refiners say that the price will probably go on until a record is reached.

The wholesale price of refined sugar advanced to five and one-quarter cents a pound this week. The refiners say that the drouth in Cuba is the cause, but the retailers whisper behind their hands that the trust is getting back the fines imposed by the Government for defrauding the customs.

TO-DAY'S BEST STORY

"IS there a preacher on this train?" asked a large, dark-visaged man as he passed from one sleeper to another. At last, after he had loudly repeated his query for the fifth or sixth time, a grave-looking gentleman laid aside a book and rose up from a seat near one end of the car.

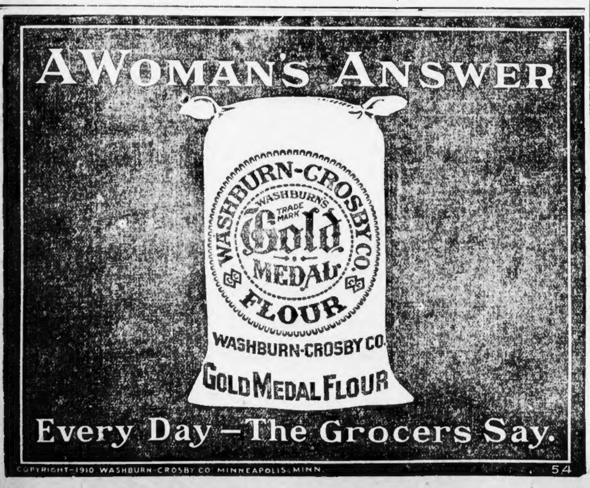

"I have the privilege of being a minister of the gospel, sir," he said. "Can I be of any service to you?"

"Yes," said the large passenger. "A fellow back in the dining car has bet me $5 that it wasn't Lot's wife who got Joseph into trouble, and I thought you might have a Bible with you, so I could prove he was wrong and get the money."

Big Piano Bargains

EVERY MAKE Are you thinking of buying a piano of some special make—a piano that has a good reputation—one that everyone knows is a first-class make? If you are, you are just the person to whom we wish to say—"Don't pay too much for it"—you will be asked a good round price for it unless you get it of us. We are in no trade or financial combination to keep the prices of pianos up—the name of a piano means much—it guarantees the instrument—but when the piano gets to our sacrifice floor the name is not considered. When we cut the price we cut all alike—and we cut deep. You buy while we cut.

Some Very Great Men WERE Married

And Some Other Very Great Men Were NOT Married. It Is Dangerous to Generalize

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

Reading in the April Cosmopolitan Magazine Alfred Henry Lewis's extremely interesting article on Joseph Cannon—mentioned the other day—you come across this pearl of wisdom dropped by Mr. Lewis's typewriter in his rapid writing:

"Only married men succeed. How often must I remind a world that its Cromwells, its Napoleons, its Washingtons and its Jacksons are ever accompanied by a mate?"

Mr. Lewis, of Wolfville—an able citizen and married man—has conquered the English language so thoroughly that it will practically eat out of his hand. It is charming to hear him talk and see him write:

"All his days Mr. Cannon has rubbed and purred about the pleased political legs of Money."

Certainly "pleased political legs" is charming. And very vigorous is Lewis's description of Joseph Cannon as the "slave-catcher and slave-driver of the criminal trusts."

But when Mr. Lewis, the married man, tells the world that ONLY married men succeed, he generalizes a little too widely.

It is true that Cromwell, Napoleon, Washington and Jackson were "ever accompanied by a mate," as Lewis puts it—which means that they were married.

But, with the possible doubtful exception of Cromwell, these were not what you might call very happy married lives.

And, Mr. Lewis, what about the general statement that ONLY married men succeed?

Can you name the wife of Michael Angelo—he was the greatest artist that ever lived?

Can you name the wife of Beethoven—the greatest musician that ever lived?

And who was the wife of Alexander the Great—the greatest soldier that ever lived?

And who was the wife of Voltaire—the greatest satirist that ever lived?

There are more great men married than great men single—because a vast majority of men marry.

Mr. Lewis will observe that the great men whom he mentions, Napoleon, Washington, Cromwell and Jackson, as fine types of the married great men, were not very brilliant successes as husbands or fathers.

There isn't anybody on earth at present to speak for them, whereas we have around us the millions of descendants of little men that nobody knew.

The married great man is better than the unmarried great man, for the former is doing his duty as well as being a great man. But it isn't true that ONLY MARRIED MEN CAN SUCCEED, and it is dangerous to generalize.

N. B.—Please don't write and say, "You are always generalizing YOURSELF." We know that.

Money Is Not "Worthless Dross"

Mr. Carnegie Is Wrong. Money Is Opportunity and Responsibility

Out at Redlands, California, Mr. Andrew Carnegie made a speech in which he said that money is "worthless dross."

The saying is not to be taken too seriously. Nevertheless it lays the great ironmaster open to the charge of talking cant.

Money is not "dross." It is always better or worse than that. If it has been honestly got, it is better. If not, worse.

In the old feudal world an attempt was made to mark the relative worth of men by the dignity of their titles. But in our new world we say a man is "worth" a hundred dollars—or a million.

Our modern way of assessing the value of men will be unquestionably better than the ancient way—AFTER WE HAVE ELIMINATED FRAUD AND PRIVILEGE FROM OUR BUSINESS SYSTEM.

Then a man's financial credit in the community will represent his real worth.

Meanwhile we would do well to drop the cant about money being dross—and set our hands earnestly to the task of arresting the rascals, employing the parasites and keeping the money of the country in the pockets of the people that earn it.

A rich man in a well-organized industrial society is one who has proved his ability to improve the adjustment of the working organization to its work. He has found out new and good ways of doing things. His credit, or capital, measures the amount of confidence that people have in his undertakings.

This capital is not "dross."

It is opportunity—and responsibility.

A half-billionaire like Mr. Carnegie has an enormous power—more or less legitimate—to determine what kind of work shall be done.

Broadly speaking, he has his choice between financing the kind of projects that make men strong and the kind that make them weak.

He has no right to breed a race of parasites. If he starts out "to do good" by making one class of men work for another class, he will miss his aim. He will do nothing but harm.

IT IS NOT IN ANY MAN'S POWER TO COMPEL OTHER PEOPLE TO DO GOOD. THE RICHEST MAN IN THE WORLD WILL ONLY MAKE A FOOL OF HIMSELF IF HE TRIES.

The only legitimate use of money power is to make the working world more just and more generous. There is no use trying to build a new world of justice or generosity outside the working world—at the expense of the workers.

If Mr. Carnegie should convey his whole fortune by blanket deed to the United States Government the effect of the transaction would in time make perfectly clear the fact that Mr. Carnegie had not relinquished to the people any considerable amount of material goods, but had merely given up his own personal power of determining what kind of work the people should do in the future.

At first taxes would be lightened. But in the long run it would be found that people were merely paying taxes through steel bonds instead of other kinds of excise.

The value of the whole bulk of material goods is consumed and reproduced every five or six years. And no man can convey a great quantity of such goods to a future generation.

RICH MEN WHO MAKE "FOUNDATIONS" AND ENDOWMENTS ARE SIMPLY UNDERTAKING TO SAY WHAT RELATION MEN SHALL BEAR TO ONE ANOTHER IN THEIR WORK AT SOME FUTURE TIME.

He Writes About The Audubon Ladies

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

THARE was a meeting of the Audobon Society at our house last nite, thare was ten (10) of the club wimmen thare that Pa doesn't like. They was thare to talk about birds & the cruelty wich is practised on birds by wimmen wich wares them in thare hats.

Husband, sed Ma, these are the Audobon girls, thay are all here for dinner. Fine, sed Pa, I doan't know anything wich wud give me moar pleshur than to set down with a bunch of jolly reformers. Come on, gals, Pa sed, & let us have a gill befoar we dine. A what? sed one (1) of the ladies. A gill, Pa sed, a dram, a young drink. Doan't be bashful, Pa sed, cut rite in.

Mercy, sed one of the ladies, I hoap you doan't think we drink. I hoap you doant drink, at that, sed Pa, bekause the sideboard isent groaning tonite. Tell me all about youre new order.

It isent a new order, sed one of the ladies; it is a order as old as the hills. The purposes of this order is to keep birds from gitting into trubbel.

& that is a very fine purpose, sed Pa. I have seen a good many birds in my time, & it seems to me that a better order wud be a order to keep birds from gitting men into trubbel. You know how it is, kiddo, Pa sed to a pritty lady wich had blond hair. Ma is dark.

What is that in yure pocket, sed Ma. It looks like a pack of cards. No, sed Pa, that isent a pack of cards. I mite as well tell yu old dames that it is one of Spring's first robins. I killed it with a club on the way hoam. It was a game littel bird, at that, sed Pa. It died with its boots on.

Horribel! sed all the ladies. How cud you be so cruie?

That is nothing, Ma sed, he is a regular brute at times. He has the meenest disposishun.

That's rite, sed Pa. Tell all the Audobon girls how I killed the humming bird last Summer. Ha, ha, sed Pa, I put one over on that littel sinner. Thare it was, gals, sed Pa, flitting from blossom to blossom, sipping the honey from them pistils & stamens, reveling in the glad knowledge that it was alive, wen all of a sudden I comes up, Pa sed, with a ten-bore shotgun. I looks at the littel thing a moment, Pa sed, as it poised above the dewy flowers like a angel floating above the gates of paradise, & then I lets it have both barrels, Pa sed, & it was curtains. Believe me, gals, Pa sed, thare wasent enuff left of that littel broiler to make a lunch for a red ant. It was harrowing.

It was vary brutal, sed one of the Audobon ladies. Somebody ought for to have shot you. This world is too sweet & pure a place for monsters like you to dwell in. However in the wurld you think such a deed is a lark is moar than I can see.

Speeking of larks, Pa sed, I put the timber to a littel medow lark last Thursday A. M. The deer little warbler was jest going to soar into the hevings, Pa sed, wen I sicked the dog on it. Our dog is vary fond of larks, Pa sed, & littel moar reemains to be tould. I hate birds, sed Pa. Thare is only two (2) worse things, walters that sing in rathskellers & wimmen that want to vote.

Yure husband seems to be a vary peecullar man, sed one of the ladies to Ma. I doant think we better keep up this meeting any longer. Let us adjurn. Oh, doant adjurn girls, Pa sed, till I tell you about the time I choked the yung blackbird. It loved life, sed Pa, but the end came peecefuly. With a despairing cry, it gave up the ghost.

What a horrible man, sed a other Audobon lady. Let us go away from here at onst.

Aint you going to wait till I tell you how I picked the tail feathers out of a oriole over in Baltimore? sed Pa. That is a short story, stick around a few minnits.

But all the Audobon ladies went hoam rite away & thay arent going to meet at our house aggenn. Pa is glad.

This Picture and That

By WEX JONES

IN THE STORY

ALGERNON VINCENT is a young man of irreproachable habits. Every morning on arising he drinks a glass of sour milk, which, he has read, will make you live to the age of one hundred, as it kills the germs that make a playground of the human system.

It is unpleasant enough to kill almost anything, so there may be something in the theory, at that.

He walks from Charlestown every morning, thus gaining health and depriving the Elevated of a nickel. Going to a lecture one night, he is kept out until 10.30 owing to the long-windedness of the lecturer. As he nears his home, Algernon sees five rough-looking men approach a white-haired stranger, and, instantly deciding that their purpose is robbery, he leaps to the old man's aid. With five blows straight from the shoulder he lays low the suspicious characters, and escorts the old man to his home. Needless to say the stranger is a billionaire banker, who makes Algernon president of his nineteen banks.

IN REAL LIFE

ALGERNON VINCENT is a young man whose habits of life are regular to a fault. At a certain hour every day he does exactly the same thing as he did the day before. At 7:30 he gets out of bed, at 7:35 he drinks a glass of hot water, which, he has read in a physical culture magazine, will keep any one in perfect condition, as there is nothing so distasteful to germs as plain hot water.

If germs have the same tastes as human beings, this seems very true.

At a certain hour he is always on the "L" station, waiting for a train. Naturally, he cannot catch one at the same time every day, as the "L" trains are not run that way. To make a long story short, Algernon one evening sees two men approach a venerable stranger, and, believing them to be robbers, he rushes up and says he will call a policeman. One of the men trips him up, and just then a policeman who comes along arrests Algernon for fighting. He is fined $10, and his boss, seeing the story in the paper, promptly fires him, whereupon Algernon takes to ginger ale and cigarettes.

De Courcy Smith is sitting on the veranda of the Onion Yacht Club one Summer afternoon, when he hears shrieks of distress and notices an overturned motor boat in the water half a mile out. Pausing only to throw off his coat and pearl pin, Smith plunges into the water and with powerful strikes forces his way through the waves to the side of the boat. Underneath it he finds a beautiful girl whom he carries quickly to the club, where she is revived in a few moments. A month later Smith is married to the girl whom he rescued, and lives subdued ever after.

While seated on the edge of a pier, De Courcy Smith hears a cry for help, and sees a girl struggling in the water. Rapidly walking to the nearest bathhouse, he dons a bathing suit, so that his clothes cannot be spoiled by salt water, and then hires a boat at the cost of half a dollar, which he regretfully reflects would have purchased four cigars. Then he paddles out and brings the now unconscious girl to the beach, where she is revived by the administration of four glasses of brandy, for which Smith has to pay $1 in advance. Coming to her senses, the girl pats her back hair, looks at Smith, and says, "Clumsy thing; you made me lose one of my switches."

The Open Door at Home

By MILO HASTINGS

THE first stumbling blocks in the way of man's progress were the barriers of nature. Mountains and seas, forests full of wild beasts, made more terrible by an imagination born of ignorance, obstructed man's path and restricted his knowledge and commerce.

Then for ten thousand years men built barriers against one another—stockades of pointed posts, walls of masonry, huge conglomerates of earth and stone with death engines poked through their sides—and all as useless now as the sword of Goliath.

But the arts of wall climbing and gate breaking followed close on the heels of the science of barrier building, and the wise ones of earth thought of a new way to limit men's liberties.

Instead of building a wall to keep the stranger out they charged him a fee and let him come in. The history of the Middle Ages is chiefly the story of the results of this policy of pay toll or fight.

Upon the principle by which a church dinner will get more money out of a community than the collection box, an indirect toll levied upon a man's possessions was found to be more profitable than if levied upon his person.

Competition developed in the toll-taking business, and the big fellows put the little fellows out of the game, and then the people, in many cases, took over the business from the Dukes and Kings.

To-day we call it tariff and use the funds to preserve law and order and conduct vast governmental enterprises.

The merchant of old paid tariff to the robber knight because he could not afford to fight. The consumer to-day pays toll to the industrial oligarchy because it is cheaper to pay than to go to Texas and drive home a steer or to keep hens in a Harlem flat.

The problem of the people of the United States in 1910 is a restatement of the problem of the people of Europe in 910, with a variation in method, but none in principle.

Of the immediate and more pressing needs of the situation there is little room for argument. Every restriction that shuts off freedom of commerce between producer and consumer, or forces the people to buy through the toll-taking channels, must be removed.

Among the more flagrant of such restrictions is the prohibitive rate of postage upon merchandise—our lack of a parcels post.

There are few propositions before the people to-day in which the argument is so one-sided. In the case of the rural free delivery wagon, which, with its twenty-five-pound load, is prohibited from carrying packages from village to farm, the present situation becomes an absurdity.

Outside of the private express companies which now have a monopoly on the parcel-carrying business, the only possible argument against the parcels post is that it would develop the mail order business at the expense of the local merchant.

As a matter of fact, the argument of the local merchant is largely a mistake, as has been shown by the developments attending cheap transportation in the trolley line districts of Ohio and Indiana. Here the country merchant becomes a catalogue expert and the buyer of the community, and orders goods that the farmers used to drive to distant towns to secure.

In either case—whether it benefit or annihilate the country merchant—why should the Government pay out its millions, secured by taxing foreign commerce, to haul empty wagons about the country and restrict domestic commerce?

Let us have the open door at home.
